Chinese Government Reports 10,000 Killed In Battle

NATIONALS DRIVE OUT RED TROOPS

Forces Menacing Changsha Reported to Have Been Routed By Loyal Army

AIRPLANES ARE USED

Armored Trains Are Employed By Both Armies With Deadly Results

SHANGHAI, China, Sept. 5.—(UP)—A combined attack of government armored trains, planes and gunboats on Communist and bandit forces near Changsha was announced today by Nationalist military headquarters.

The announcement said 10,000 of the forces menacing Changsha had been killed and the rest fled southward.

Military headquarters simultaneously claimed that the armies of General Feng Yu-Hsiang, who has been co-leader of the rebel government set up at Peiping, was withdrawing northward along a wide front.

Feng was said to be evacuating the Lungshai Peking and Hankow railway fronts, while the government forces were advancing northward as well as defeating the Communist and bandit forces at Changsha, to the south.

The chief government objectives on the north were Kai-Feng, Cheng-Chow and LoYang.

Residents of the city of Changsha, sacked recently by Communist troops aided by bandit forces, had been greatly alarmed by the battle and were starting to leave.

The government announcement said troops opposing the bandit forces, which had returned in an effort to recapture the Hunan capital, were aided by aviators who flew over and bombed the enemy.

Armored trains were employed to advance government forces and gunboats laid down a heavy barrage.

General Feng Tehu was reported leading the bandit forces, which engaged government troops not far from the walls of the city. Troops of General Hsieh were said to have deliberately drawn the bandits into the open for the purpose of surrounding and exterminating them. The population of the city, however, was alarmed by the large number of forces opposing the Nationalist soldiers and many fled northward fearing the city would be sacked for the third time within a month.

The 22nd division of the Nationalist army led the fighting and finally broke the resistance of the bandits and slaughtered them, pursuing the fleeing forces southeastward toward the regions from which they first came.

MOONEY ASKS GOVERNOR TO HEAR APPEAL

Radical Convicted of Bombing Makes New Plea For Freedom

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—(UP)—Thomas J. Mooney, convicted of the 1916 preparedness day bombing in San Francisco which killed 10 persons, has appealed for a personal hearing before Gov. C. C. Young and the advisory pardon board of San Quentin prison, who are in receipt of his pardon application, Frank J. Walsh, attorney for Mooney, said today.

Mooney, whose first application for a pardon was turned down recently, filed a second application when John MacDonald, key witness in the original trial, repudiated his former testimony a few weeks ago.

The California supreme court last month made a journey to Folsom prison to personally hear Warren K. Billings, also convicted of the dynamiting and like Mooney seeking a pardon.

The supreme court is considering the case of Billings while Mooney's application is in the hands of Governor Young, California law requiring that twice convicted men, such as Billings, have a supreme court recommendation on a pardon application.

NAVY FLIERS STOP AT SALT LAKE CITY

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Sept. 5.—(UP)—The "Red Rippers" carried on today towards their base at San Diego, after an overnight stop at Salt Lake.

The "Red Rippers" compose the 17 Wasp-like planes and two heavy transport planes officially known as the fifth naval squadron.

En route from the Chicago National Air races, the navy planes arrived in Salt Lake from Cheyenne late Thursday and this morning took off for Las Vegas, Nev. They were greeted and entertained by the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce and city officials.

There was one vacancy in their ranks—Lieutenant "Jack" Deshazo, noted air flyer, who was killed in the air races.

DEPUTY KILLED IN RAID FOR LIQUOR

SANDUSKY, Ill., Sept. 5.—(UP)—Herbert Coryell, a deputy sheriff, was shot to death, and Buck Bryant, 18-year-old bootlegger, was wounded when officers raided a still here last night.

Bryant and another man, believed to have been running rum, were fired on by Coryell and Clarence Brown, constable, as they sought to force their way into a house where the still was in operation. The officers returned the fire.

Both men in the house escaped but Bryant was arrested at his home later. The second man also was believed wounded but had not been captured today. The still was confiscated.

Yuma Man Must Stand Trial For Murder of Woman

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 5.—(UP)—His extradition fight lost, Lee Roberts, of Yuma, left here early today with Investigator Pat Thunman of Imperial county, to stand trial in El Centro, Calif., for the murder of Mrs. Florence Miller.

The order of Gov. John C. Phelps, granting extradition of Roberts to California, was upheld last night by Superior Judge M. T. Phelps when the latter denied a writ of habeas corpus in the case.

Attorneys for Roberts fought extradition on the contention that Mrs. Miller died in Prescott, Ariz., beyond the jurisdiction of the California courts.

FRENCH FLYERS HOP OFF AT DALLAS FOR NEW YORK CITY

REWARD ASKED BY CREW THAT FOUND ANDREE

Sweden and Norway Prepare to Pay Homage to Memory of Explorers

TROMSOE, Norway, Sept. 5.—(UP)—Swedish and Norwegian officials who had been busy preparing for the homage the two nations are to pay to Solomon Auguste Andree and his two companions lost in an attempt to fly to the north pole in a balloon in 1897, today turned their attention to a claim of the crew of the sealer Brattvaag for compensation for finding the bodies of Andree and one of his companions and the relics of their arctic camp.

The Brattvaag crew claimed 10 per cent of the value of the discoveries, declaring that members of the crew, and not the Norwegian scientist Dr. Gunnar Horn, had found the remains of the Andree expedition on White Island.

The remains of the Andree camp and the bodies of Andree and Nils Strindberg were brought to Norway on the Brattvaag. Dr. Horn headed a Norwegian scientific expedition aboard the vessel and carried on his work as conveniently as possible as the sealer cruised through the arctic sea.

The value of the discovery of the remains of the Andree party is considered problematical by experts, although it was admitted that their cash value might be great if efforts were made to commercialize them.

Dr. Horn intimated that he would favor devoting any funds derived from the sale of Andree's records to furthering exploration in the arctic, particularly in the region of Franz Joseph Land.

The entire matter rested in an uncertain light today, as Andree's expedition was Swedish and the mystery of its fate was solved by Norwegians. Relatives of Andree have expressed the desire to turn all the discoveries over to the Swedish government, and to bury Andree in their family cemetery.

Calvin Coolidge Says

By CALVIN COOLIDGE
Former President of the United States
NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 5.—The senatorial committee investigating campaign expenses is not a dignified spectacle.

After the supreme court decision that jurisdiction over nominations rests with the states, an investigation of them under the fiction that it is for the purpose of future legislation is a questionable use of authority. It would seem to lead almost to the conclusion that the people cannot be trusted to choose their own candidate with supervision. To admit that is to admit that self-government has failed.

Proper police power should be invoked through executive action against violations of the law. For a legislative committee to engage in it, to direct a force of detectives against candidates as though they were suspected of criminal action, does not comport with the dignity of a great deliberative body. Now a counter band of detectives are investigating the investigators. Evil practices in making nominations should be prevented and punished. But that is not the function of the senate. Liberty requires that the executive, legislative and judiciary be kept separate. Tainted elections can be handled in a dignified way on the senate floor. They do not warrant a dangerous invasion of executive functions and state rights.

PARIS NEWSPAPERS ATTACK W. R. HEARST

PARIS, Sept. 5.—(UP)—The expulsion from France of William Randolph Hearst, American editor, shared headlines with the flight to New York of Coste and Bellonte in the Paris newspapers today.

The press was generally bitter toward the statement Hearst made in London after he arrived there from France. Hearst had said that "if being a competent journalist and a loyal American can make a man persona non grata in France, I think I can endure the situation without loss of sleep."

L'Avener said that "Hearst would like to be spiritual but he simply cannot. He does not yet understand the disgrace of his conduct."

"If all Hearst's gestures of the past were insufficient to explain his expulsion, the impudence of his London declarations justify it," Figaro said.

The previous record of 2,511 kilometers was held by the Czechoslovak flier Vichrek.

USING OF BOYS AS SPIES HIT BY DRY LEADER

Director Woodcock Declares This Plan to Be Stopped

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(UP)—Further indication of altered tactics in the government's prohibition enforcement policies was seen today in Prohibition Director Woodcock's order outlawing the plan to use small boys as spies in dry law investigations.

This proposal is to be deleted from the course of instructions at the newly established school for dry agents here. Previously it had been expounded for some months as part of a correspondence course. Woodcock made no comment on his action.

Figures made public by Woodcock showing distribution of the $9,000,000 appropriated for the prohibition bureau revealed today that more federal money and agents are being employed to enforce the dry law in New York state than in any other of the 12 districts.

New York is receiving $1,087,520 and 293 agents are on the rolls there. The southern district embracing Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas, is second with $979,559.

In addition to the money spent by the bureau, the total dry enforcement cost includes coast guard, customs service, justice department and federal courts funds aggregating about $40,000,000 yearly.

Trans-Atlantic Birdmen to Land at Louisville to Spend Tonight

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 5.—(UP)—Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte waved farewell to a madly cheering group at Love field here today and roared into the air for a return flight to the eastern seaboard.

Their Sesquiplane Question Mark which has been in the air with but brief pauses since last Monday rose gracefully over the field at 12:32 p. m. (C.S.T.).

The flyers, who have put approximately 5500 miles behind them since their departure from Paris for New York, planned to break their journey at Louisville for much needed rest tonight.

They will continue to Washington Saturday, for a luncheon with President Hoover, Rene Recova, their manager, said.

A reception was to be held in their honor at the capital Monday.

The Question Mark was wheeled from its hangar at 9:30 a. m.

Coste and Bellonte adopted a leisurely attitude today, postponing their departure which at first was scheduled for 7 a. m. They ate a hearty breakfast at their hotel and arrived at the airport in high good spirits shortly after 10 o'clock.

Coste and Bellonte went over their plane carefully, tugging at stays and inspecting controls, before they climbed in for the take-off.

Airport officials estimated it would require six hours for the Question Mark to reach Louisville and was not expected to land until dusk.

Slayer of Motley Flint May Be Sentenced to Hang By Judge Schauer

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 5.—(UP)—L. Frank D. Keaton, admitted slayer of Motley Flint, banker, today was found sane by a jury of six men and six women.

Since Keaton, through his plea only of not guilty by reason of insanity, confessed the killing he faces either the death penalty or life imprisonment.

The decision on the severity of the punishment lies with Superior Judge B. Key Schauer, trial jurist, who will pass sentence September 10.

Keaton, an Inglewood real estate dealer, took the verdict calmly although three extra bailiffs were at his side, anticipating an outbreak similar to that he made yesterday during closing arguments.

The case was given to the jury at 5:40 p. m. yesterday after evidence pertaining only to Keaton's sanity was presented.

The foreman of the jury, Lloyd E. Wyatt, declined to state how many ballots were taken before the verdict was reached.

Flint, one of Southern California's most prominent bankers and a brother of the late United States Senator Frank Flint, was shot to death as he walked from the witness stand at a trial in the court of Superior Judge Collier last July.

Three bullets, any one of which would have caused death, struck the financier high in the body.

Keaton was arrested in the courtroom and claimed his act was precipitated by losses in stocks. He blamed the banker for these losses.

The resolution follows:

"Resolved: That we, the Connecticut Federation of Labor, in convention assembled, do most sincerely and earnestly petition his excellency, C. C. Young, governor of the state of California, to grant unconditional pardon to Tom Mooney, and endeavor to hasten the decision of the court in the case of Warren Billings, to the end that justice may be no longer retarded and that in a slight measure may be righted the wrong done these two men, and the verdict of public opinion vindicated."

JURY DECIDES KEATON SANE: FACES DEATH

Building Wrecked

The buildings of the Bank of Nova Scotia, offices of the Bull Inular steamship line and many other large buildings were demolished. Banks were closed and all business activity of the city has ceased to permit the hastily mobilized relief forces to function.

The government announced that three vessels were expected here from Porto Rico early tomorrow, bringing supplies and medicine and physicians were expected by airplane from Cuba and the Haitian government has dispatched supplies and medicine by airplane and land routes.

The fate of the interior regions still was uncertain and it was feared the restoration of communication lines would show the hurricane struck violently along a wide path northward across the island.

The capital was slow to recover from the fury of the storm that hit with great violence, destroying most of the houses of the city and filling the streets with wreckage, but the government made every effort to maintain order and provide food and medical care for wounded after a night of terror.

Every possible agency or relief was employed pending arrival of southside aid, which was requested by government officials as soon as the acute shortage of food and medical supplies became apparent. President Rafael L. Trujillo was assisted by American Minister Charles B. Curtis in directing the work of relief and taking precautions against disease by speedy disposal of the bodies of victims.

Death Takes Veteran Of Santa Ana Police Force

STRICKEN WITH HEART TROUBLE AT SOUTHGATE

1000 REPORTED TO HAVE DIED IN HURRICANE

W. H. Wolfel, 62, well known Santa Ana police officer, and night desk sergeant here for the past eight years, died suddenly while seated in his automobile, at Southgate, at 10 o'clock this morning, according to word received here shortly before noon.

Death was believed to have been due to heart trouble. Mr. Wolfel had complained of not feeling well for the past several days, it was reported.

Today was his regular "day off" from his duties at the police station and he, with Mr. and Mrs. Bert Edmonds, friends from Columbus, O., who were visiting him, left here early this morning for Southgate. They had just arrived when Wolfel was stricken.

The body is at the Suburban hospital at Southgate, but will be brought to the Smith and Tutthill funeral parlors probably late today, from where funeral services will be held.

Mr. Wolfel was a native of Columbus, O., where he was on the police force, acting as a sergeant for a number of years before coming to California. He was a police officer here since 1922 and for the past several years had been a sergeant of police. His wife died here several months ago, at the family residence, 724 East Pine street.

The vehicular tube under the Detroit river connecting Detroit with Canada has three traffic ways and will handle 1000 vehicles an hour. It cost $25,000,000.

ADVANTAGES OF UPPER PRADO DAM OVER LOWER PRESENTED BOARD BY ENGINEER FINKLE

Information relative to the two proposed dam sites in connection with the flood control and water conservation program in Orange county that has been secured by F. C. Finkle, engineer for the Water Users' association, was presented to members of the consulting board of engineers on the project at a meeting in Finkle's office in Los Angeles today.

Finkle told the three engineers, George Elliott and Thomas Means, of San Francisco, and B. F. Etcheverry, of Berkeley, who have been selected by the county board of supervisors and directors of the Orange county flood control and water conservation district, to make a survey of the county to recommend a program for protection to the citizens as a solution of the problem that must be solved, of the geological conditions of the upper and lower sites, of the hydraulic problems with reference to the two sites and of the discrepancy in costs involved.

The engineering board expressed its desire of obtaining all information possible relative to the problems and gave the Water Users' association engineer a courteous hearing. Members of the consulting board also indicated that as a result of the information obtained today from Finkle they would probably desire another conference with him in the future for the purpose of obtaining additional information.

Finkle told the consulting engineers today in speaking of the geology of the lower site that the entire area was a mass of anti-chinals, synclinal and deep faulting, under heavy compression, and that it would be dangerous to build a dam anywhere from Sulphur Slide down.

The geological terms used mean folding of rock, with formations bulging up or down, forming domes or depressions with deep faulting in the formation making the district unsafe as a dam site. He also called attention to the fact that the earthquake of July 8, 1929, caused a shaking up at the proposed lower site.

Finkle asserts that building a high dam at the lower site would be treacherous and would endanger the property below the dam. He declared that there were no such faults at the upper site and that it would be safe.

In making a comparison of the hydraulic factors of the two sites, Finkle pointed out to the board that a dam at the lower site would interfere with the present irrigation system and also with percolation of ground water to the basin below the dam, while these conditions would not exist if a dam were erected at the upper site.

The cost factor was also introduced in the discussion of the problem presented by Finkle, who asserted that there was a great discrepancy in this regard with the advantage lying with the dam at the upper site. Location of a dam at the proposed lower site would mean relocation of considerable railroad line at a great expense. It would also mean the construction of a dam 155 feet high, while a dam only 93 feet high would be required at the proposed upper site.

As concerns water conservation estimated through building a dam at the lower site, Finkle declared that instead of saving 13,000 acre feet of water, there would only be half that amount saved.

Members of the consulting board are coming to Santa Ana at the conclusion of the hearing in Los Angeles today to continue the investigations they are making.

CIVIC CENTER PROJECT WILL BE DISCUSSED

Following the endorsement by three Santa Ana service clubs, of a project to launch a bond issue for the purpose of raising funds to purchase the Francis Willard Junior high school site, on North Main street, representatives of all service clubs in the city were to meet in the council chambers at the city hall this afternoon, for the purpose of outlining a plan for the bond issue to be presented to the city council.

Representative citizens are desirous of Commerce and a number of interested citizens also were expected to be present at the meeting.

The Santa Ana board of education has planned to sell the property on September 9, and if a bond issue can be floated immediately and passed, the school board may be willing to wait until that time for its money, it is understood.

Representative citizens are desirous of retaining the property for the city as a civic center.

The Santa Ana Lions' club endorsed the plan yesterday and the Kiwanis and Exchange clubs had endorsed it previously.

Business, English, report writing, police methods and practice are to be taught at the school, provided as many as 20 officers agree to attend.

The cost to the police officers will be nothing.

The school will start as soon as enough officers have registered, it was said.

SANTA ANA IS SCORED ABOVE LARGER CITIES

Another mark for other cities and counties to "shoot at," further substantiating the claim of Orange county as the wealthiest little county in the world, is the fact that the per capita valuation of the city is $2174 and the county valuation reaches a figure of $4488 per capita.

This means that every man, woman and child in the county, on the average, would rate $4488 in the division of actual values on real property, if it were equally divided.

The assessed valuation of the county for real property, not including intangibles or operative property, is $177,456,630. The population of the county as revealed in the 1930 census, is 118,611. Assessed valuations, however, are made on a ratio of not more than one-third of the actual value, so the true value of the real property in the county approximates $532,369,890. Divided by the population of the county, as revealed by the census, this gives the per capita figure of $4488.

In the city of Santa Ana, where the population is more dense, the per capita figure declines to the $2174 mark. This is arrived at in the same manner as figuring the county per capita rate, on an assessed valuation of $21,982,015, a real value of $65,946,045 and a population of 30,322. This mark is regarded as unusually high for cities, many other cities, including San Francisco and rich cities in the bay area, having a per capita wealth much less than the total which Santa Ana may claim, according to J. C. Wallace, insurance and real estate man.

The rate of one-third was used in the computation of the per capita figures in order to reach a conservative estimate.

RELEASE PAIR IN STATUTORY CASE

Following an investigation ordered by Judge James L. Allen yesterday, after he had remanded Mrs. Hanna M. Benton and George Howard into the custody of the sheriff, the pair had been released today. It was ascertained that the offense for which they were held had been committed outside the jurisdiction of Orange county.

Mrs. Benton testified on the witness stand yesterday during the course of a contested divorce trial, which she had started, that Howard was the father of one of her three children, and the arrest of the two was ordered by the court following the completion of the trial which resulted in the decree and custody of the children being awarded to the husband, Lloyd F. Benton, who had filed a cross complaint.

The investigation, which was conducted by Deputy District Attorney W. F. Menton, revealed that the statutory offense had not been committed in Orange county, but probably had occurred in Fresno county, and the release of the couple followed. Menton stated today that he was forwarding the information to Fresno county officials.

Bonds of the $50,000 issue

recently authorized and sold by the county supervisors for the Costa Mesa elementary schools, were signed yesterday by county officials. The bonds are now ready for the purchaser, American Sureties company. Official signatures carried on the bonds are those of Willard Smith, chairman of the board of supervisors, County Auditor W. C. Jerome and County Clerk J. M. Backs.

Frank Koppl, 32, of Huntington Beach, and Laura Lee Grayson, 25, of Wilmington, have applied for a marriage license in Riverside.

The Michigan society picnic will be held September 14 in Sycamore Grove park. Mayor Porter, of Los Angeles, A. Etenza, attorney and past commander in chief of the Spanish War Veterans of America, will be among the speakers. W. W. Vale, San Bernardino, one of the state's oldest fiddlers, will be there and John Brown Jr. will tell of coming to California in 1849. The East Side Community band will play.

M. B. Pratt, state forester, and Winfield Scott, lecturer for the California Fire Protective association, will be the guests of honor and principal speakers at a joint meeting of the Villa Park-Olive Farm center and the Orange County Fair Protective association to be held at 7:30 p. m. today in Olive hall. Scott will give an illustrated talk, using a number of slides and pictures. A large attendance is expected for the event.

SHOCK CAUSE OF McFADDEN DEATH

A coroner's jury, in an inquest this morning over the body of Samuel H. McFadden, of Fullerton, returned a verdict of death from shock resulting from first and second degree burns received last Monday. McFadden died yesterday in

The body is at the McAulay and Suters funeral parlors at Fullerton.

BAND CONCERT DEDICATED TO 'CHURCH NIGHT' APPLAUDED BY AUDIENCE IN BIRCH PARK

BY RUTH ANDREWS

Birch park again made picturesque rendezvous last evening for the customary gathering of several thousand Orange county music lovers, who have enjoyed the Santa Ana Municipal band's regular weekly concert series throughout the summer. The program presented last night under the direction of D. C. Cianfoni was arranged in honor of "Church Night," and featured selections principally of symphonic nature.

Vigorous rhythms of Meyerbeer's familiar "Coronation March" made effective preface, being followed by the graceful overture, "Mignon" from the well known lyric opera by Charles Ambroise Thomas. The overture was pleasingly portrayed, the delicacy of shading and detailed phrasing it necessitates artistically brought out, contrast of instrumentation emphasized.

Both movements from Franz Schubert's compelling "Unfinished Symphony," one of the most famous masterpieces of symphonic repertoire, was interpreted by the director with instinctive feeling for the melodic beauty and poetry characterizing this work. Composed for orchestra, it is interesting to note the interchange of instrumentation necessitated by the band arrangement of the famous score, in which woodwinds achieve the effect of strings. Delicacy of phrasing necessary to secure the desired subtlety of tone effects was artistically brought out with a feeling for glowing contrast.

Premiere local presentation of Sibelius' "Valse Triste" was attended with interest. The waltz is unusual, with widely accented rhythmic pattern, the ominous foreboding which is the keynote of its short, staccato measures clearly emphasized. Fancifully weaving counter-melodies of the inner theme were interesting, the brief dance-form read with delicacy.

Appearance of the large mixed chorus choir of the First Methodist church with Mrs. F. W. Slabaugh conducting, was enjoyed, and lent to the musical program its definitely sacred note. Contrasting of mixed voices was equally effective in two familiar sacred classics, "Send Out Thy Light" by Gounod, and Beethoven's "The Heavens Resound."

Fluttering melodic grace of Bendix's dainty "Butterfly" appealed, predominating woodwinds suggestive of never ceasing motion and lightness. Pleasing variety was found in Director Cianfoni's trombone solo, "The Lost Chord" (Sullivan) again echoing the sacred note of the program, continued applause rewarded by the band with a spirited march.

Ever an impressive closing, Sibelius' tumultuous "Finlandia" made a vigorous finale, for this interesting modern work never fails to thrill with its dynamically contrasted moods and shading, with ever present hint or Nordic folk theme.

Harry Hanson, president and manager of the band, announced that the final program of the band's summer series would be offered next Thursday evening, September 11. On this occasion, the all-request program will include two special features of outstanding interest. A ballet composed of 25 dancers will appear in costume, with colored lighting effects, while the band will feature at closing the celebrated "Overture 1813" by Tschlakowsky, originally composed for four bands and a cavalry. This number was used only last week by the Hollywood Bowl Symphony orchestra to close their own famous concert series.

PRIZES GIVEN TO POPULARITY RACE WINNERS

Winners of the Santa Ana Register-Fox West Coast theaters popularity contest, which closed a week ago, were officially given their prizes from the stage of the Fox West Coast theater last night, before a crowded house.

At the same time, screen tests were made of each of the 10 winners, all of whom will appear in a motion picture to be made here immediately.

The contestants and the prizes they accepted were: Norman Paul, suit of clothes; Corrine Pennington, evening gown; Luvinia Layton Schade, gas range; Everett Conkright, one dozen photographs; Dorothy Reynolds, wrist watch; Mario Mercurio, trip to Catalina island; Sue Verberg, trip to Catalina; Ted Newcomb, down payment of $300 on an automobile; Virginia Roberts, trip to Catalina, and Robert Naylor, airplane trip to San Diego and return.

First shots in the motion picture will be made at the Fox West Coast theater next Thursday night while the audience looks on, according to a statement made by Norman Sprowl, Fox theater manager. The scenes will be in the boy's dormitory of a school. The name of the picture is "Double Play."

FAIR SPACE BEING RESERVED RAPIDLY

Orange County's tenth annual fair, to be held from September 30 to October 5, will have the usual auto show and some late models are expected to be shown, according to the announcement today by Charles E. Lee, secretary. The management hopes to present displays occupying space 100 by 100 feet in dimensions.

Negotiations are under way also to secure the sister ship of the famous Question Mark, if one is available at the Burbank airport. If this is not obtainable, a sister ship to the one flown by the Hunter boys at Chicago will be sought, Lee said.

About 50 per cent of the industrial tent space has been acquired by Orange county and Los Angeles county firms, said Lee, pointing out that this year's fair will be held after returns from orange, lemon and pepper shipments have come in. Lee said that space in the machinery tent has been sold with the exception of a small location for farm machinery. Lee declared that the 1930 fair and particularly the automobile and machinery exhibits, promise to equal any previous fair.

Clarence Place Dies As Result Of Broken Neck

Clarence R. Place, 29, of San Bernardino, who suffered a broken neck while jumping breakers at Newport Beach last Sunday, died at the San Bernardino county hospital yesterday afternoon. Place was rescued from the water by a friend, Harvey Totten, and after emergency treatment at the Newport Beach hospital, was taken by ambulance to the inland city.

The accident caused complete paralysis and the victim had been unable to move a muscle since the accident. An autopsy was held today. Funeral arrangements have not been complete.

Injury To Boy's Chin Is Treated

John Potts, 7 year old youth residing at 1114 West Third street, Santa Ana, was treated at the Orange County hospital late yesterday for a severe cut on the chin received when he fell down a hill at Irvine park.

After being given first aid treatment the boy was taken to his home. The injury was not of a serious nature.

CAMP HAMILTON, WINDER, Pa., Sept. 5.—Trainer Bud Moore of the University of Pittsburgh football team has established a "fat men's table" for members of the squad overweight. Already four Pitt players have been delegated to a slim diet.

THREE WOMEN AND ONE MAN ASK DIVORCE

Four divorce complaints, three of them based on charges of cruelty, have been filed in superior court, three of the plaintiffs being women.

James R. Adams named his wife, Nona Adams, in the complaint he filed, and asserted that she informed him she loved another man whom she caused to come to California. He also asserted that she took their child and went to Bravely on August 21 in order to be near the other man. They were married in Santa Ana in 1925. Extreme cruelty was charged.

Thelma Ayers, in asking a release from her marriage contract with Lorin Ayers, declared in the complaint that he accused her of associating with other men, that he cursed and struck her and failed to provide for her. They were married in Santa Ana, April 23, 1922 and separated August 4, 1930, the complaint said. The plaintiff also asked $50 per month for support.

Declaring that her husband struck her, cursed her, was frequently intoxicated and on one occasion forced her to sleep in the car in the garage, Emma Baker asked a divorce from James A. Baker on a charge of cruel and inhuman treatment. She asked the custody of their minor son. They were married in 1921 and separated August 9, 1930.

Desertion was the basis of the complaint filed by Effie Van Arman against Foster M. Van Arman. They were married on Coronado Island in 1924 and she was deserted in Anaheim on April 16, 1929, the complaint alleges.

Editor Register:—

Recently a man outstanding in American affairs advanced as a fact the statement that an individual had reached his highest point of efficiency at 40 years of age and from that time on began to go down. There were reactions to this declaration. Among others, youth began to wonder if they could afford the time for preparation. Those in middle life were disturbed with the hazards of losing their jobs.

It is unfortunate that 40 seems in many cases to be the dividing line. A few of those employing help have drawn the age line at 40. However, for the man over 40 there need be no more concern over his job than at any other age if he has sufficiently prepared himself to meet just such conditions. To that end, his training, his knowledge, his vision, his horizon, must be bigger than his immediate job. That is a part of an earlier training and cannot be acquired at the later age.

The 40 age declaration has created much discussion at luncheons where business men assemble. The first impulse was to turn to "Who's Who," but this list has been over-worked already, and it was desirable to have figures from the immediate present.

The directorate of the United States Chamber of Commerce suggests itself. The personnel of the directorate is made up of men who have made notable contributions to leadership in industry and business. "Has-beens" are not elected to the board of directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Selections are made from men who are still going forward, not those who are slipping back.

The average age of the 46 directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce is 57 years. The youngest director is 40, the oldest 84. Only 15 per cent of the entire directorate is under 50 years of age. These figures materially advance the age of highest efficiency. Probably some explanation of this showing may be attributed to the fact that 72 per cent of the directors acquired adequate educational training as young men—this training measured in the terms of present-day standards.

It would seem, therefore, that men have not reached their highest efficiency at 40; that the youth devoting his time to schooling is in line to advance his age of highest efficiency; that there is adequate time in a boy's life to acquire leadership in business, industry, or the professions; and that the boy who is now laying the foundation through schooling for broadening his horizon will reduce the hazards of unemployment in later life.

elementary school here for the past two years, has accepted a position on the faculty of the Ventura high school. Mr. and Mrs. Brooks and their two sons who have been residing at 410 Ninth street, left this week for Ventura.

Phone Calls Meet Weather Extremes

When the centenary of the discovery of Chilean nitrate was celebrated this past summer, President Hoover talked by radio telephone with President Ibanez of Chile. At the time, the United States in general was suffering from a protracted heat wave, while in Santiago it was so cold that no train had been able to enter the city for three days. President Hoover offered to exchange some of the extreme heat with which the United States was suffering for some of the cold in Chile.

ANAHEIM

ANAHEIM, Sept. 5.—Mr. and Mrs. David Sanders and daughter and son, Alice and Herbert, were recent visitors at Lake Arrowhead. Mrs. Sanders and children are spending the latter part of this week with Mrs. Sanders' mother in Los Angeles.

Miss Peggy Johnson has returned to her home at 111 East Valencia street, after spending 10 weeks visiting friends at Berkeley. Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Cole, recently of Palmdale, are spending a few days with Mr. Cole's mother and his sister, Mrs. M. D. Falconer, at 223 East Alberta street.

Mrs. Percy W. Olds was the honored guest at a shower given by Mrs. Paul Demaree at her home at 323 North Pine street Wednesday afternoon to which women of the choir of the White Temple Methodist church were invited. The guests were given hand work to do for the honored guest and later Mrs. Olds was presented with a large basket filled with dainty gifts. The afternoon was concluded with refreshments served by the hostess.

Present with the honored guest and the hostess were Mrs. A. C. Peck, Mrs. A. L. Knipe, Mrs. G. H. Goodale, Magdalena Wells and mother, Mrs. Wells; Mrs. C. H. West, Mrs. L. P. Nichols, Mrs. Carroll Yonge, Mrs. Fred Edwards, Mrs. S. L. Corrie, Mrs. L. R. Puryear, Mrs. J. E. Rymer, Mrs. Charles Steninger, Miss Ruth Rymer, Miss Mary Margaret Yonge and the Misses Gaweis and Margaret Nichols.

Late News From Orange County Communities

WRITERS BRING WIDE FAME TO LAGUNA BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, Sept. 5.—That this community, far famed for its artists, will become even better known for its writers, is the prediction of Miss Cathleen Hayes, journalist, here on vacation, who has been making a survey of the writers now in Laguna Beach.

Stephen Chalmers, novelist, dean of the writers, is of like opinion. When Mr. Chalmers came here in 1920 he was the only one of his kind, the lone author among a colony of artists. Now there are many professional writers making their home, and the number is growing. A count of writers, including professionals, news writers, amateurs and aspiring ones, netted a result of 80 when Mr. Chalmers and Hal Forrest, veteran newspaperman, took the census of writing people several months ago.

Among prospective residents are Laurence D'Orsay, literary critic, and his partner, William Thorpe, who plan to make this their home this winter. They will bring their secretarial staff and will conduct their international literary business from here.

Besides the many Los Angeles newspaper writers of rather wide fame who come here from time to time, many foremost authors, such as Willard Huntington Wright, better known as S. S. Van Dine, make occasional visits.

Professional writers, most of them short story writers, who make their home here for all or a major portion of the year, are Stephen Chalmers, Harold Channing Wire, Robert DuSoy, Robert H. Leifred, Ernest Paynter, Braxton S. Norton, Alice Fessenden Peterson, Dillwyn Parrish, Anthony Anderson, Sumner Crosby, E. H. Crosswhite, Ted Cook and Harry Carlisle.

Of these, Chalmers, Wire, Norton and Mrs. Peterson have written a number of books. Dillwyn Parrish has written in collaboration with his better known sister, Anne Parrish.

LAGUNA BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, Sept. 5.—Although they said that the trout did not bite the last two days of their stay in the High Sierras, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Reed caught all they could eat during their recent vacation in the mountains. The Reed family, in company with Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Lancaster and family, of Sunland, returned Thursday from a week in the Owen River valley camping at Silver Lake, Blue Lake and North Lake.

Five Lagunans plan a deer hunt in the mountains near Kings River. They will enter the mountains near Independence and will take their camping outfits and their bows and arrows. The last trip was the goat hunt at San Clemente island, when the archers brought down nine wild goats. Those of the party will be Harold Reed, Clyde Armitage, Owen Holmwood, H. J. Minter, Mr. Birch and Clyde Day.

EXHIBIT WORK OF PUPILS OF ORANGE CENTER

ORANGE, Sept. 5.—The closing of the classes at the Americanization center on Cypress street, yesterday, was marked by an exhibit of work done by those attending. During the past term classes have been under the supervision of Miss Zeldia Swartz.

Work done by the adult pupils this year includes sewing, cooking, pottery, basket making, art work and the study of English. One of the most beautiful pieces of work was a wool quilt made by Miss Rafaela Nava. Paintings done by Jose Ayala, on black paper with white poster paint were among the unusual things shown. An especially attractive vase was exhibited by Eneida De Leon.

The classes will be resumed in December. The building is also used as a health center.

Miss Swartz expects to attend a California university to complete her work for a master's degree this fall and early winter. She is a graduate of William and Mary college in Williamsburg, Va., and attended the University of Southern California. In Pennsylvania she did Americanization work among various peoples from Europe.

Shopping and cooking vegetables are two subjects greatly enjoyed by the women of the Americanization classes, Miss Swartz declares.

The closing of the center yesterday was preceded by a dance and social evening at Irvine park the night previous.

Hotel Men May Send Murphy To Seek Convention

Plans to send William J. Murphy of Santa Ana, past national commander of the Disabled American Veterans of the World war, to the American Legion convention at Boston next month as their spokesman in an effort to win the next Legionnaires' conclave were taken under advisement by the executive committee of the Southern California Hotel Men's association at a recent meeting in the Alexandria. Preliminary arrangements for the state convention of hotel men at Lake Arrowhead on October 18, 19 and 20 were made by the committee members.

FOWLER FIRM WILL HAVE ROCK PLANT

ORANGE, Sept. 5.—A new industry was established this week with the location of a rock crushing plant in the bed of the Santiago creek, owned and operated by A. E. Fowler and Sons, of Santa Ana. The firm has taken a long term lease on the land on which a loader and crusher is located. The expenditure will run over $7500.

The crushing plant has a capacity of 200 tons and a fleet of four trucks will be employed in carrying the rock to the places where it will be used. The plant will be placed in operation Monday. The equipment for the plant will include loaders, crushers and bunkers, and this machinery is now being installed.

The senior member of the firm, A. E. Fowler, had been engaged in the rock business for the past 20 years, having started in Santa Ana with a few teams. At the present time teams are in the work at the plant in loading.

It is better to feed pet dogs scraps and internal organs that butchers discard rather than choice cuts of meat, according to Dr. William Lentz, director of the small animal hospital at the University of Pennsylvania.

Logan Jackson and W. O. Hart were elected to succeed themselves on the building committee, their terms having expired. The hold-over members of the committee are James Ragan, Claude Potter, H. O. Wallace and Clyde Slater.

A report of the state convention was given by Harvey Riggle, H. O. Wallace and George Franzden.

Pictures on Floor, Buried 1400 Years, Tell New Story of Ancient Worship

One of the almost perfectly-preserved mosaics... found by the Zionist settlers. . . . It depicts the month of Heshvan, or the autumn season. . . . The crude but intricate character of the work is well shown.

Digging an irrigation ditch in Palestine, workmen uncover perfectly preserved foundations of a synagogue built in 525, with mosaics of Bible history likely to come face to face very suddenly with antiquity. The diggers uncovered a strip of the mosaic floor which Marianos and his son had laid with careful fingers 14 centuries ago. Some of the stones were arranged to form Hebrew letters; the diggers had, without intending it, made a find of major importance, had dug up a forgotten chapter from the past of their own people.

They made haste to notify the Hebrew University at Jerusalem, and Dr. L. Sukenik, archaeologist, came out to investigate. He arranged for careful and complete excavation at once, though the season was unfavorable, so that the colonists might be able to finish their irrigation ditch.

When at last Dr. Sukenik's workmen had laid the whole ruin bare, he had the ground plan of the ancient synagogue in full, and the interesting mosaic pavement in a remarkably well-preserved condition. The building had been in some respects typical of the synagogues of that time in Palestine; in others, it introduced new features.

The main portion had been divided into three naves by rows of pillars, the ground floor reserved for the men, with a gallery for the women worshippers. The three entrances customary in synagogues were at the "wrong" end of the building, however; they were on the north end instead of on the side nearest Jerusalem, which in this instance happened to be the south. Furthermore, they did not open

SOME time about the year 525 a contractor named Marianos and his son, Hanina, were given the job of laying an ornamental floor in the synagogue of a village in northern Palestine. It wasn't a very large town or a very distinguished one; its very name is now forgotten, and neither Roman nor Jewish history contains any reference to the place.

It was just another of the innumerable Main Street towns of the world, whose inhabitants carried on their several businesses, assembled piously on the Sabbath, and in due time were gathered to their fathers, all without raising enough dust or shedding enough blood to earn a few penstrokes on parchment.

Like the small-town folk of today, the people of this forgotten village were a really religious lot, and they wanted their meeting-house to be a place they could really be proud of; a place, moreover, that would instruct their children through their eyes as the Torah reader instructed them through their ears.

So Marianos and his son, Hanina, were commissioned to cover the floor of the synagogue with pictures in stone—mosaics, we call them now. They did their workmanlike best, and were so well satisfied with what they had wrought that they put in an inscription telling who they were and that they finished the job in the reign of the Emperor Justinus.

This dated signature, written in bits of colored stones, turns out to be one of the most important things about their whole artistic effort. For this synagogue which they thus decorated is the only building of its kind in Palestine of whose date we can be at all certain.

Ruins of other and more pretentious synagogues have been found, but of their time only an approximate notion has ever been gained. And synagogues in Palestine are obviously as important, in rebuilding our picture of the life of former times, as are churches or mosques or classic temples, all of which are the subjects of increasingly active research.

BUT however much applause Marianos and Hanina may have had from their neighbors for their artistic efforts on the floor of the synagogue, the immortality they sought for their names was relatively short-lived. For at some time during the troubled period of war and confusion that marked the later centuries of antiquity the village was abandoned or destroyed, and the synagogue died with it. The roof and walls fell in, and the debris of centuries piled deep over the tessellated floor. Greek and Saracen, Crusader and Turk, fought each other to the death, or made treaties and traded; all through the middle ages and modern times life ebbed and flowed through the Plain of Esdraelon where the town had once stood, and the forgotten stones of its houses lay as dumb and unheeding as dead men's bones.

Then came the thunders of the World War, like the trumpet of resurrection. The land, long prone beneath the hand of the Turk, stirred and shook itself. Under a new regime, a people who had possessed it ages before sent back some of its scattered sons and daughters to till the land that their fathers had known. Under the banner of the Zionist movement Jewish colonies sprang up in many parts of the old kingdom of David and Solomon.

One of these agricultural colonies settled on almost the exact site of the long-forgotten village in the Plain of Esdraelon. Its founders, young men and women from Galicia, Germany and Czechoslovakia, called their town Beth Alpha.

There were old stubs of walls sticking out of the soil here and there; but ruins are common in an old land like Palestine, and the new colonists were too busy wrestling with the present and providing for the future to dig much into the past. The problem of water was with them, as it had been with their ancestors in the wilderness, and they undertook to meet it by the construction of an irrigation ditch.

That trench brought them into direct contact with the past, whether they would or no. Wherever you go a little beneath the surface of the ground in Palestine you are very

How Marianos & Hanina depicted the story of Abraham and Isaac in mosaic stone. . . . On the right, the flames leap from the altar. . . . Abraham holds Isaac and a wicked-looking knife. . . . The restraining hand of the

The sun-chariot, pulled by four horses. . . . This surprising decoration appeared in the very center of the floor. . . . It is Greek and not Hebrew at all. . . . and must have been purely a cultural lesson in popular astronomy.

The Biblical story of Abraham and Isaac. . . . as portrayed by a modern artist. . . . Below is the mosaic representation of the same scene recently uncovered.

THE dramatic interruption of the contemplated sacrifice by orders from on high is symbolized by a hand surrounded with rays, extended out of a cloud, with the inscription in Hebrew characters: "Lay not thine hand upon the child."

It may be that the artist-artisans omitted a full representation of the angel of the Lord who thus relieved Abraham from the agonizing task of sacrificing his own son simply because the space was already crowded with human and animal figures; but the question suggests itself, was not this omission possibly due to the reverent dread the Jews have always had of depicting the incorporate and infinite Yhwh in any bodily form? Even when God was present only through His agent, picturization may have been judged an impiety.

The question becomes one of some interest and importance for the understanding of the synagogue of Beth Alpha because of the great mosaic design that occupied the center of the floor. This is not directly connected with the Jewish ritual at all. It is Greek; it might even be called pagan. Within a circle formed of the 12 signs of the zodiac are the four horses and the driver of the chariot of the sun.

If this had been found in any building not otherwise identified, one would immediately jump at the conclusion that it was a representation of the pagan sun-god Phoebeus-Apollo.

But here in a synagogue, surrounded as it is by indubitable evidences of the orthodox and uncorrupted Judaism of the congregation, the sun-symbol must be taken simply for a cultural picture—one might say a lesson in astronomy assembled in stone. This interpretation is strengthened by the presence of winged figures at the four "corners" of the circle, which appropriate inscriptions present as the spirits (djinn, if you like) of the four seasons.

The presence of any human or animal figures at all in the decorations of a synagogue may be a puzzle to some, in view of the known strictness of the rule against graven images. But a Jewish writer in the German scientific journal, "Die Umschau," calls attention to the fact that these "images" are not, in the strict sense, graven. They are flat figures, and the idols against which the Mosaic legislation was originally aimed were carved "in the round." So pictures of this kind might well be tolerated; just as the Orthodox Christian churches of the East forbid carved statuary but permit painted and enameled ikons, as well as wall paintings and mosaics.

THE interdict on graven images, "the likeness of anything that is in the heavens above, the earth beneath or in the waters that are under the earth," has never been interpreted with absolute literalness. If it had been, it would have prohibited the making of images of flowers, fruit and other parts of plants; but such images were actually required as part of the ceremonial garments of the priests. That the iconoclastic temper of the Jewish people was somewhat modified after half a millennium is testified by the elaborately pictured floor of the synagogue at Beth Alpha. It is possible, too, that in this part of the country, remote from Jerusalem and in more intimate contact with Greek culture, such modification was a little easier.

Thus much, of interest to Jew and Christian alike, can be read from the ruins of this one synagogue—a village synagogue at that, and in a town so obscure that all memory of it had perished. There must be many more such places waiting for the spade of the archaeologist—in Jerusalem alone, Josephus says, there were 394 synagogues. The synagogues of the larger towns must have had greater distinction, whose remains will tell even more than Beth Alpha.

Lord appears from the clouds above, the ram is tied to a tree, and the servants wait behind with the donkey. . . . It is remarkably true to Scripture as to all details, telling the story exactly in the Biblical manner.

branch, the Etrog, or citron used at the Feast of the Tabernacles.

The big job of portrayal that these two pious artisans undertook was the story of the Sacrifice of Abraham, as directly into the synagogue itself, but into a transverse anteroom known as a narthex, typical of early Christian churches, but hitherto unknown in synagogues of that period. Another departure was the erection of an apse, or projecting end, in which stood the ark which always faces toward the Temple at Jerusalem. This again is more characteristic of Christian than of Jewish places of worship. There were stone benches around three walls, where the people sat during prayers.

BUT the great find is the mosaic floor. This tells a colorful story of orthodox piety and faithfulness to Jewish history, tempered with a cheerful eclecticism that did not refuse a bit of decoration that savored of the Greek, so long as it did not introduce the hated and dreaded worship of idols.

There is also a curious contrast between the taste of the workers in selecting their stones and their technical skill in working out their pictures and designs. For the bits of stone that are wrought into the figured floor are astonishingly assorted, showing no less than 22 nuances of color. But the figures themselves are astonishingly, childishly naive, even crude. The faces on the human figures are almost duplicates of the efforts of early American tombstone sculptors, and the drawing of their limbs and those of the animals is reminiscent of that in children's sketch-books.

But regardless of their lack of skill, the father and son who laid the mosaics had their Bible history straight, and they also faithfully portrayed the various objects used in the ancient Jewish ritual: the Ark, the Perpetual Lamp, the Shofar, or ram's-horn trumpet, the Lulab, or palm told in the twenty-second chapter of the Book of Genesis. It is all shown, in primitive but graphic outline. Two servants hold the donkey with the empty packsaddle, remaining behind as Abraham told them to. Farther along stands the bearded and robed patriarch before an altar on which the flames already rise high. He holds the luckless young Isaac suspended in one hand, and in the other poses a long and wicked-looking knife. Behind him, unnoticed as yet, is the ram in the thicket, which Abraham finally offered up.

The irony of American politics is that there are so many Prohibitionists and so few members of the Prohibition party.

TRAVEL
Of education, we are told That travel is a part;
So indispensable, they hold,
To make us people smart.

Well, don't we go by land and air
From place to place each day?
It matters not how far or where,
We're traveling—I'll say!

And what a race will live and learn
If travel makes us smart!
But if you want a safe return
Be wise before you start!

ELECTION AFTERMATHS
What is public office good for, anyhow?

The primary election was all that it was cracked up to be, but there are only ten more weeks until we'll find out who will be our next sheriff, treasurer and district attorney.

Some of us think we know who will win, but the average election bet is a poorer gamble than speculation in oil.

THE FUMIGATOR congratulates the winners, but it congratulates the losers, too.

If Ralph McFadden were elected sheriff he would have to give up personal attention to one of the finest orange groves in California.

Then there's Jim Pearson. Jim still has his job as chief of police, and he has Fullerton so clean that there isn't much for him to do. If he were sheriff he would have plenty to do and not much to do it with. Ask Sam Jernigan.

The trouble about being elected to public office is that you aren't there very long until they line you up as one of the courthouse gang, and there you are! In fact, it's harder to keep out of a political ring than a miniature golf course.

Notice how close the auditor's race was. Here's the reason. Bill Lambert is one of the finest and cleanest fellows that ever ran for public office in Orange county. And Bill Jerome has been a faithful and efficient public servant. It's mighty hard, if indeed possible, to find anybody in Orange county who will say anything against the administration of Mr. Jerome. So there you are again. We sum up the auditor's race in this way. The election of Lambert by a small majority of votes was a fine tribute to the man. The closeness of the race, considering his long public career, was a splendid endorsement of the high esteem in which Bill Jerome is held by the people of Orange county.

Undismayed by not having received any write-in votes in the primary, "Red" Spider is running on an independent ticket for sheriff, and Miss Mealy Bugg, for treasurer, respectively. Their slogan is "Pests of the People!"

WESTMINSTER

WESTMINSTER, Sept. 5.—Fred Basse, president of the local chamber of commerce, and James Monroe, local representative of the Associated C. of C., attended the recent Associated Chambers meeting at Laguna Beach, after enjoying the play "Prunella."

It is feared that Robert Phipps, who was injured in a hunting accident Monday at Elsinore, may lose the sight of one eye. It will be two weeks before this can be definitely determined according to the eye specialist who is in charge of the case. Phipps, who was at the Seaside hospital, was removed from the hospital Tuesday. Mrs. U. E. Phipps, his mother, has been staying with him in Long Beach since the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Prichard and family were Long Beach visitors Labor day.

Mrs. Anna Carlson, who has been visiting her former home in Colorado since July, returned to Westminster Tuesday, having arrived in Santa Ana the last of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Stanley and young daughter are spending the remainder of the week in San Diego county with Mrs. Stanley's brother-in-law and sister. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Murdy, who moved there from Los Angeles a few weeks ago as Mr. Murdy has upward of a year's contract there. Mrs. Murdy and Miss Lola Murdy were here for the day Monday and the Stanleys accompanied them home.

Dr. J. J. Taylor, government physician for a group of five Indian reservations in San Diego county, and Mrs. Taylor, of Pala, were week end and Labor day visitors in the home of Mrs. Addie L. Blakey.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Little spent two nights at Laguna Beach, where they visited Mrs. Little's mother, Mrs. Hill.

One of the old landmarks of this section, the house on the Charles Parr ranch half a mile north of Westminster boulevard, is being torn away. The house was built in early days by a Mr. Campbell. Dr. Clay, well known early-day local physician, occupied the house for a number of years and the Parr family lived there from 1908 to 1921. The present living room is a portion of one of the first houses erected in Westminster, later being made a part of the present house.

With the wrecking of the old landmark, it was brought to the mind of Harry Anderson, son of the first settler of the Westminster colony, that he has in his possession some of the boards from the porch of the old "Coyote House," one of the early stage stops located on Coyote creek at what is now Buena Park. The old building was an adobe of Spanish days in California, and the timber for the wooden part of the building was carried from the mountains by Indians.

Mr. Anderson also has two boards now a part of his own barn, which were of the sheep herders hut on his present land which was purchased by his father 60 years ago. The old boards are of redwood in the old tongue and groove lumber, the boards being "tongued" and "grooved" alternately in putting them together in the building.

Mrs. L. B. Conrad and baby, who have been spending two weeks in their former home, Ventura, have returned home.

An Eye Full of Beauty

By CHARLOTTE C. WEST, M. D.

IN the daily hygiene of the body, the eyes and their aids—the lids, brows and lashes—are more often than not overlooked, yet they require the same daily care accorded the hair, teeth and nails. The eyes should be given a bath morning and night; in the morning to remove the secretions that have accumulated during sleep and to freshen and stimulate them for the day; on retiring to remove dust and grime and to prepare them for any special treatment required, which is best given at this time, as it produces the best effect during the quiet hours of rest.

Because of the extreme delicacy of the tissues, never use force or "dig" into the eyes with a wash cloth or towel. Use two eye cups; bathe both eyes simultaneously. In this manner the entire field—eyes, under and upper lids—are actually bathed. The following eye wash is of signal benefit when used as an eye bath:

EYE WASH

Boric acid, 1-2 dram; sodium borate, 1-2 dram; peppermint water, 3 drams; fluid extract hamamelis (white), 4 drams; camphor water, 2 ounces; distilled water, 2 ounces.

Use in eye cups.

PHYSIOLOGIC salt solution—one teaspoonful of refined salt to one pint of boiled water—makes an excellent wash. This may be applied warm on pledgets of cotton to cleanse the eyes, after which cold water should be repeatedly dashed on for its tonic value.

After a month's daily attention, the health of the eyes respond by a clearness eminently delightful—and let it be emphasized that the beauty and expressiveness of the eye depends almost entirely upon its color and healthfulness.

Beauty of color in the eye is also dependent on health. Every color of eye is beautiful when the organ itself is brilliantly healthy; no color adds to the lustre of the eye when this is dull, heavy, bleary, congested, jaundiced, or pale, sick and weakly.

The color acquired by an outdoor life, or by exercise in the open, gives vigor to the blood, owing to the large amount of oxygen and electricity inhaled through the lungs and skin. This purified blood is carried to all parts of the body, rebuilding the tissues upon a more beautiful and sounder base.

THE iron in the blood—itsself a strong pigment—takes the oxygen from the atmosphere and carries it as vividly red, buoyant blood to all parts of the organism. If the blood is thin and pale, if it is poor in iron, it carries little oxygen, and the tissues are weak, pallid, destitute of life, force, expression, energy, beauty, color.

The color of the eyes also change, apparently, by absorbing or reflecting the color from their surroundings. We are all acquainted with the improvement manifested by the eyes when the complexion is scientifically "made up."

As a rule, the color of the eyes conforms to the general coloring of the hair and skin, and it is quite a study to select such colors in dress as will harmonize and enhance their beauty. (Copyright Thomas Y. Crowell Company.)

Give Youngsters a Chance to Help

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"MOM" took off her hat and laid it on the bed wearily. If only people wouldn't give bridge parties in August! And if only women would learn to talk about something else than their children and laundresses.

As she'd said to mamma on the front porch, she felt as though she'd been yanked through a keyhole backward. Everything had rubbed her the wrong way.

And now there was dinner to get. Mamma, dear soul, had offered before she left, but she knew that while she'd been gone the older lady had been busy every second and that the fresh gray Swiss dress and glossy white crimps were but half an hour old. The cool sweet person on the porch was only cool, sweet and relaxed for her benefit.

But Mom knew. Mamma was to sit exactly where she was until Bob came home at six. She slipped on a house dress, tied on an apron and started down the back stairs, but a hot blast struck her like fumes from an iron mill. At the same time she heard busy, excited voices in the kitchen. If the back stairs was such a fiery furnace, what could the kitchen be like? And what on earth were the children doing?

"Don't go down, Ella!"

Mamma had slipped up the front stairs and stood smiling behind her. "I thought you'd lie down a minute and I was almost too late. Don't go down."

"What are those little devils up to?"

MAMMA hesitated. "Why—it's a surprise. Don't go down."

Her daughter glanced at her wrist watch. "It's 20 minutes after five and if I don't hustle, Bob's dinner will be late as it is. I want to have scalloped potatoes and chops, and I have all that spinach to fix."

"Please. It's a surprise! I told them I couldn't keep you out, but I hoped you wouldn't come home till later."

"Mamma, I smell meat—burning. Those chops cost 60 cents a pound. I must go down. I'm going."

Mamma sat down and started to fan herself with a newspaper. "Well, go on, but if you do, I'm going over to Charlie's and stay till morning. I can't stand the sight of those children's disappointed faces."

"They're getting dinner!"

Silence.

SUDDENLY mother untied her apron and lay down on her bed. "I have a headache for a fact, and that kitchen isn't fit for a puddler to go into. Let the worst happen. All I ask is for you to stand between me and Bob, and not cry your eyes out if he disappears for an hour tonight to get a square meal down at Seiler's."

"Mind, Ella, I didn't tell. You will be surprised, won't you?"

"I'll say I will. Heavens—there's Bob now." The hungry husband had arrived.

A stately procession, hot, smeared and smiling, filed into the room. Gretchen first, then Bobby, then Linda.

"Please come to supper," said Linda very consciously. They had drawn broomstraws for the honor of making this precious announcement, and Linda had won.

DAD'S genuine surprise made up for mother's doubtful one. "Well I declare," he spoke up manfully. "Ain't that some'n!"

They descended.

And there were the chops, the scalloped potatoes, and the spinach with egg on top.

"Well, this is what I call wonderful!" declared mother heartily—too heartily. The food had yet to be tasted. But as Dad pulled out mamma's chair and Bobby stood ready to seat his mother she leaned toward the gray figure and whispered accusingly, "You helped."

"I didn't," came back the happy, tremulous reply. "I just suggested and explained a few things."

The dinner was "bully," "very bully," and Bob, whose children's watchful eyes were on him, didn't stroll down to Seiler's at all. He said it was the best meal he ever ate.

We shall lower the asbestos on the kitchen that took two days to rescue.

But two people—no, five—learned a lesson. Children can do a lot more than we think they can if they have the strong incentive and intense interest we can cultivate in them.

Trimmings For Trim Waists

THE belt's the thing that gives color, originality and chic to many new frocks.

At midsummer openings, belts abound. If your new frock isn't belted, there's a real question whether or not it is smart!

As a general rule, the fussier a frock, gown, sports outfit or bathing suit, the plainer the belt, often being a tailored stitched belting of the lace, chiffon, linen, knitted wool or whatever fabric the costume is.

In converse manner, the simpler an outfit the more the imagination can fly hither and yon gleaming ideas on how to girdle you smartly.

You can have your belt match your beret, your scarf, your purse, your shoes or just be some lively fabric and color all its own. But it is just as well to have the note struck by your belt tie up in some way with the general idea of decoration of your whole costume.

SUPPOSE you have a party dress that needs changing a little to give it originality and new chic. Pink, blue or other pastel colored velvet ribbon makes delectable girdles for your selection, with bows that make corsage bouquets right in front, of flowers, butterfly bows that fly out over the hips, flat, long, trailing bows for the middle of the back that are practically trains in themselves. Match up their color in your slippers and a bright chiffon handkerchief of mammoth proportions and your gown is saved.

For the daytime costume, the very latest and trickiest belt is the little double-breasted one that has just enough military swank to make it smart.

This may be a gleaming white suede belt, with black buttons, to wear with a white frock, or it may be navy blue, with gold buttons, black with pink buttons or any other colored suede you want. Patent leather is good, too.

For the afternoon frock of chiffon, batiste, lace or crepe or cotton, the soft little colored suede belt with tie ends is very new and smart. It has a simplicity about it that makes it devastating indeed. Take a soft green figured frock, belt it with the softest tone of green suede, have slippers to match.

THE pulley belt in patent leather is very new, if you happen to want some belt very suitable for the travel suit, the coat frock or for your sports clothes. This has a metal buckle, quite like the hooks on a pulley, and must be made exactly your size, since you can't shorten or lengthen it much. The buckle is done in gunmetal, in hammered silver or very pretentious, indeed, in a gold washed metal. The more the buckle gleams, the better most girls like it.

Among the very newest belts is the hand-embroidered linen one. For wear with one of the new plain linen sports dresses, a big scarf, a beret and belt made of white linen gaily cross-stitched or worked in a novel stitch of some kind, in many colors, is excellent.

Two-Timing Your Home Is Good Sense

IN this age of hurry and hustle, when there are so many interesting things to do, and so little time in which to do them, the clock has become increasingly important. With a luncheon date at 1 o'clock, or a shopping tour scheduled for the afternoon, or an engagement for tea at 4, the busy housewife must constantly keep track of the flying minutes.

And there is no longer any reason why a home should have only one clock, or two. Timepieces are now made, in attractive designs, for every room, ready to fit into any decorative scheme. Clocks, after all, are part of the furnishings of a home, as well as mere mechanical devices, and their appearance, as well as their accuracy, should be considered.

One of the oldest types of clocks, and still one of the most beautiful, is the venerable "Grandfather" clock, with its handsome carved case and air of aloofness and dignity. Its musical chime, announcing the passage of the hours, gives it an appeal to the ear, as well as the eye.

Of course, the "Grandfather" clock is at its best in a larger home, where the other furnishings match its impression of age and traditional good-taste. But now there's a new standing clock, that might well be called the "grandson" of the old variety, that fits in beautifully with the furnishings of a small apartment—and may be had either with or without the chimes.

WHILE the big clocks range in height up to 82 inches, the "apartment-size" runs about 65 inches. It is provided in a number of designs, even art moderne, and can be made a part of any up-to-the-minute ensemble.

The tendency, in recent years, has been to simplify even the big fellows. The tastes of few modern purchasers are like those of Thomas Hancock of Boston, who wrote his famous instructions to his agents in London, in 1738, as follows:

"Get a clock of the newest fashion with a good black Walnut Tree Case Veneered work, with Dark, lively branches; on the Top instead of Balls let there be three handsome Carved figures. Gilt with burnish'd Gold. I'd have the Case without the Figures to be 10 feet Long, the price 15 not to exceed 20 Guineas, & as it's for my own use, I beg your particular Care in buying it at the Cheapest Rate. I'm advised to apply to one Mr. Marmaduke Storr at the foot of Lond'n Bridge."

THERE is an abundance of other clocks for the living room, to stand on bookcases, or mantles, or tables—or almost anywhere. The bedroom selection is hardly less varied, some of the most charming of these clocks being tiny affairs designed for a place on the dressing table of the lady of the house.

And even the kitchen can have a clock that fits its setting, some of the porcelain creations, with tricky scenes of Holland or Japan or almost anywhere else, painted on their faces, adding immediately to the attractiveness of the culinary department.

The electrical clock, that operates on the current when plugged into the wall and never "runs down," is a very popular variety, and it is becoming more so every day.

Thousands of housewives have found it easier to be punctual, and handier all the way "round, to 'two-time'—or three-, four-, or five-time—their homes.

The Children's Lunch

By MISSIS PHYLLIS

IF you are the mother of a youngster about two or three or four years old and want him to play with the children of some of your friends, don't you find it rather hard to arrange it?

The morning is the best time. Yet morning is not decreed the proper time for social calls. Do it anyway. Only start the ball rolling by inviting your friend and her child in at about 10 o'clock. Then the children can play until noon, have a little lunch together and then be ready for naps—in their own homes and their own beds.

Lunches for children are, of course, the simplest in the world. So don't fuss for the grown-up either. You and she might just as well have what the children have. It won't be elaborate, but your tummies will enjoy the change.

ABOUT the table. Don't use your best linen.

Use the plainest you have, so long as it is spotless. It is a good plan to have a pretty oil-cloth piece to put at the children's places. If it is about the size of an ordinary napkin, it serves as an excellent tray-cloth and can be wiped up easily, in case a cup of milk is spilled or there are similar accidents. You might even use paper dishes. The children will love them, if they are of good stout paper.

If the day is fine and the weather warm, set a card table out on the porch or under the trees. Nothing tickles children more than a picnic and the smallest thing can convince them that this is really a picnic.

NOW about food. How about creamed asparagus, crisp bacon, baked potatoes and tapioca pudding? Add bread or rolls and jelly and a pitcher of cool milk, with tea for adults.

If you use paper plates, you might get those that are made in three partitions. In the larger part is the baked potato. The children's potato has been removed from the skin and buttered and seasoned according to discretion, of course. The adults' potato may be split, a generous dab of butter and sprinkling of paprika put in the top as a special dispensation.

In another compartment is put the creamed asparagus and in the other the crisp broiled bacon with a triangle of bread or toast beside it and perhaps a bit of jelly or jam.

The very simple tapioca pudding makes a filling dessert and still one that uses plenty of milk—a thing for mothers of non-milk-drinking children to bear in mind.

TAPIOCA CUSTARD PUDDING

Two cups milk, pinch salt, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1-4 teaspoon vanilla, few grains nutmeg, 2 tablespoons tapioca.

The tapioca is the quick-cooking kind. Beat the eggs slightly and add the salt, sugar and nutmeg. Add the milk and vanilla and stir until well blended. Add the tapioca. Cook in a double boiler until the custard is thickened and the tapioca transparent.

This pudding is a little more custardy than the ordinary tapioca pudding and many children like it better on that account. Serve over sliced bananas or apple sauce now and then for a change. The children will like it that way.

Here is another menu for the children:

Carrot eggs in spinach nests Poached egg Toast Orange junket

The carrots are merely balls cut from large carrots and boiled in salted water until done. Boil the rest of the carrots along with the balls because they can be minced for the next day or cut into small cubes in soup.

Wash the spinach in several waters and cook in the water which clings to the leaves. Season and drain well. Chop and make little nests of spinach on the plates. Put three or four carrot balls in the center, arranging like eggs in a nest.

The eggs are cooked in boiling water, of course, and served on the toast. At the edges of the toast put bits of jelly for decoration.

For the dessert use a package of prepared and flavored junket. Heat two cups of milk very slightly and pour over the junket powder. Let stand until set. Very plain cookies or crackers might be served with the junket.

The adult guest would have the same as the children, except that it might be well to have two eggs on toast or a slice of ham between the toast and the egg. Then everybody'll be happy.

ARRAIGN SEVEN PERSONS TODAY IN COURT HERE

Seven prisoners were arraigned before Judge J. L. Allen today on criminal charges in informations filed by the office of District Attorney Z. B. West. Pleas of not guilty were returned by six of the men and the other is to make his answer to arraignment at the session of criminal court next Friday.

F. C. Merrifield, Thomas Stark and R. Gonzales, faced the charges of driving while intoxicated. All are to have jury trials, having entered pleas of not guilty. Merrifield will be tried on September 25, Stark on September 24 and Gonzales on October 23.

Carl Settle, who is charged with a statutory offense, will answer his arraignment next Friday. Leo Schroeder answered not guilty when arraigned on a charge of grand theft in connection with the alleged theft of $2000 worth of oil stock. He will be tried on November 3.

L. C. Horrocks is to be tried by a jury on October 27 as a result of his plea of not guilty to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 12-year-old girl in connection with alleged bootlegging.

Frank Corrales, it was charged, attempted to pass a $25 check on Fred McCracken, of Buena Park. He entered a plea of not guilty and will be tried on October 21.

Daniel Valle, who formerly entered a plea of guilty to a charge of possession of a deadly weapon by a foreigner and asked for probation, was denied probation by the court when the hearing was called, on the ground that the offense was not subject to probation and the time for pronouncement of judgment was set for next Monday, September 8.

Two La Habrans Held For Hold-up

Two La Habra youths, William Bidwell and Al Jenkins, were arrested by Los Angeles officers last night, following a hold-up at a service station just over the Orange county line at about 7:30 o'clock. The owner of the station, T. W. Gipple, was forced at the point of gun to empty his cash register for the bandits.

But $2.50 was in the cash drawer, Gipple having placed $450 in the hands of another person for safe keeping a short time before. The station owner took the license number of the bandits car and Bidwell and Jenkins were arrested in Long Beach and taken to the Norwalk sub-station.

'WOMANLESS' WEDDING WILL BE REPEATED

"Here Comes the Bride" is usually the signal for a reverent little hush in church, home or auditorium, but last night at Esplanade club it seemed to occasion more laughter than reverence, when members of the Santa Ana Bethel "Womanless Wedding," with various prominent Masons of the city in the leading roles.

From the first entry of the "wedding guests," until the final words of the ceremony pronounced by "Bishop" Edward Morris, there was uncontrolled mirth, and never did it reach such paroxysms as when the petite bride, "Miss" Sam Jernigan, entered in a veritable conflagration of maidenly blushes.

There was no question but what the genial sheriff made a most beautiful bride, and one entirely worthy of his many bridegrooms—a certain well-known Mason of the city who reached almost to the shoulder of his heart's choice.

The "Womanless Wedding" will be repeated tonight by the cast of nearly 100 Masons, and once again Sheriff Jernigan will promise to love, honor and obey his pint-size groom for the entertainment of the large crowd expected, while those naughty little brothers, Joe Steele, and Ben Lindsay, and equally mischievous twin sisters, James Tarpley and Charles Cogan, will repeat their pranks.

The same noted guests, Miesha Elman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford, Governor and Mrs. C. C. Young, Mrs. Schumann-Heink, President and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, General Pershing, Col. Lindbergh, and other celebrities, will have part, and the same amazing family connections will hobble, strut, limp and float down the aisles.

In perfecting their plans for presenting this popular and amusing entertainment, the Job's Daughters, of which Miss Lucille Bernann is queen, had the assistance of Masons and Eastern Star members, with Mrs. George Shippe serving as general chairman. Serving under her were various sub-chairmen, including Margherita Marsden, cast: Mrs. Asa Hoffman, advertising; Mrs. Charles Cogan, costumes, and Mrs. Sam Nau, tickets, and many others.

THOMPSON DEFENDS HIS TITLE TONIGHT

CLEVELAND, Sept. 5.—(INS)—Young Jack Thompson of Los Angeles, will slide in between the ropes at Old League park here tonight wearing the world's welterweight championship crown, but whether he can get out the same way he got in with the crown still perched on his head is a cat of a different color.

It all depends, for there is a young fellow named Tommy Freeman of Erie, Penn., and Cleveland, who Thompson has to see about it. Freeman, it seems, has entered some objections to Thompson's right to wear the crown, and the matter will be settled tonight as quickly as possible.

Police News

J. M. Edwards, 32, of Long Beach, was arrested near Buena Park early this morning and lodged in the county jail after the sheriff's office had received several complaints regarding his actions in that section of the county.

He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Harry Carter. Edwards is a service station proprietor in Long Beach, he said.

Talking Picture And Automotive Exhibit Planned

An automotive educational exhibit and talking picture show will be held from 10 a. m. until 10 p. m. tomorrow at the W. W. Woods agency for Reo Trucks, at 615-619 East First street, according to an announcement made here today.

The show will be for the purpose of prospective buyers and the public in general to see the working parts of a truck. There will be no sales made and no one will be asked to buy, according to Woods. The entertainment is sponsored by the Reo company.

Court Notes

An action has been filed in superior court by Cornelia Mulvey directed against Fred A. Backs, as executor of the will and estate of Anna Lundin, in which the plaintiff seeks judgment for a claim against the estate which it is asserted has been refused by the executor. Mrs.

Mulvey claims that an agreed balance of $2000 was due her on an account from Anna Lundin.

Alleging that he has suffered loss of $4000 by the asserted refusal of E. Carrillo, et al, to comply with terms of a lease, G. W. Lewellen has filed a complaint in superior court asking judgment for that amount for asserted breach of contract. The plaintiff asserted in the complaint that on May 5, 1930, he leased from the defendants 20 acres of land, with the understanding that the defendants were to furnish water to irrigate the land. This they have failed and refused to do, he asserted, thus making it impossible for him to plant a crop of tomatoes as he had planned.

Judgment for the Williams Plan company in the amount of $1197.47 was returned yesterday by Judge L. Allen after hearing evidence in the action the company had filed against C. P. Smith on promissory notes.

Asking $2787.06, which it is claimed is due and unpaid on a note, suit has been filed in superior court by the First National bank of Santa Ana against William J. Cozard, et al.

MAN FINED $25 FOR EACH DOVE OUT OF SEASON

J. C. Appel, 1312 Alhambra street, Huntington Beach, is one man who will take a good look at the calendar next year and probably for the years to come before he shoulders his shotgun to go dove hunting.

He was arrested yesterday on charge of shooting doves out of season and was fined $25 for every bird he had in his possession. There were seven birds, according to the testimony of Game warden W. L. Hare, so Appel owes the county $175, according to the ruling made by Justice Morrison in his case. Hare arrested Appel in the Santa Ana river district.

Morrison granted the defendant until September 11 to pay the fine, and added that if it was not taken care of by that time Appel would go to the county jail for a period of 150 days.

The doves which Appel is alleged to have shot were killed August 30, two days before the dove season opened.

SAN FRANCISCO TO PROBE RING DEATHS

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—The San Francisco county grand jury started an investigation today into prize fighting here in general and recent deaths of two local fighters, in particular.

The death of Frankie Campbell, cavyweight, as a result of his recent match here with Max Baer, prompted the investigation, but the probe will include "manifestations of the prize fight industry in general," District Attorney Matthew Brady said.

Assistant District Attorney John Tyrell, who will conduct the investigation, asserts he has been informed that "sinister conditions prevail, that referees have been implicated in betting deals and that prize fights here are controlled by gamblers."

HERNANDEZ WINS FIRST MAIN EVENT

which Nick Mestas won from "Curly" Ewing on points. Ewing is a one-handed fighter but his left was enough. Mestas was down for seven in the first few seconds but came back to draw in the second round and win the third. Ewing cut loose in the fourth and gave Mestas a terrible beating from there on. Ewing substituted for Joe Haskell.

The Melvin Bobo-Frankie Abasco circus act was called a draw. The fans enjoyed it. Bobo always is good for some laughs.

"Bull" Carraway had Chris Martinez all but out in the second round, and then hit the Mexican while he was down and was disqualified. Carraway is inexperienced, this being his second professional match, but he shows possibilities.

Emil Pariz scored a technical knockout over Harry Purdue in the third round of the curtain-raiser.

U. S., BRITISH TO NAME POLO TEAMS TONIGHT

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
(I. N. S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Less than twenty-four hours before the curtain will rise on the thrilling drama of a great international match, the polo teams of America and Great Britain will be named tonight, thus bringing to a climax a period of surmise and speculation that has intrigued the public no end.

The public is very anxious to know Thomas Hitchcock's mind, wherein it differs very little from Thomas Hitchcock. It has taken him over a month to find out that he doesn't know what he is going to do. The fault isn't Hitchcock's, it is that of candidates for one of the "up forward" positions on the American team. They play excellent polo but not when playing with Mr. Hitchcock, which is dubious taste.

It all doubtless will end with the young man and his polo committee naming the team they have had in mind from the first, Eric Pedley at No. 1; Earle Hopping Jr. at No. 2; Hitchcock himself at No. 3, and Winston Guest at back. I surmise that there have been better teams than this playing polo in the name of America and I know there have been worse.

British Lineup Certain

The British, almost as surely, will name Gerald Balding at No. 1; Lewis Lacey at No. 2; C. T. L. Roark at No. 3 and Humphrey Guinness at back. They are almost obligated to do this, because these four men happened to be on the field the only time the British have looked the part of real polo team so far. They have had tragic handicaps in the illness of Alvan Roark and Captain George and two little practice, both here and abroad. The Americans it seems, have had too much.

Undefeatable two weeks ago, they appear to have left much of their polo on the practice fields of Sands Point and Piping Rock and, if there is anything that can give the riddled and uncertain invaders a fighting chance, it is the possibility that the Americans got much too good much too soon.

They apparently couldn't lose two weeks ago, so they became panic-stricken or something and worked themselves into exhaustion. Consequently, Pedley, who had been hitting eight to ten goals a match, suddenly lost his touch under the posts and, since the American system of scoring is predicated on his ability to convert the long driving of his backfield into points, the efficiency of the team fell off accordingly. However, Pedley's disquieting lapse may be due as much as anything else to the ceaseless interchange of candidates for the position of captain behind him at No. 2.

Falls Handicap Hopping

Hopping was the original choice but two bruising falls during test matches operated against his natural development and now the young man, instead of being consistent, is merely preverse. He seems to play first class polo only when a member of the second team. However he has the only thing that the others palpably lack, big game experience, and this ought to be enough to get him the place. His only rivals are Cecil Smith, whose act is uninspired dependency, and "Rube" Williams, who is ultra-zealous. Neither tendency is particularly attractive. Elmer Boeske, for reasons never made clear to the lay mind, seems to have been distanced long since.

The British have a problem equally pressing but quite dissimilar. If the Americans have too many candidates, the British have too few. They came over here with two No. 1 men and both of them promptly fell ill. In the emergency, they had to do the best they could, which was to re-appoint "Barney" Balding, an Anglican living in America. He did well in practice but not well enough, so they had to move his brother, Gerald, forward to No. 1 and let Guinness have a whirl at back. The result is that "Pat" Roark is the only member of the original team who is likely to play in his accustomed position.

Thus, we have two polo teams ready to take the field tomorrow, knowing a great deal about each other but very little about themselves. A nice time should be had by all.

will be a battle of strategy all the way to the bitter end. Although Howard ("Rosy") Merrill, brilliant Santa Ana right fielder who is second only to Leavitt Daley for the season's batting laurels, was reported slightly improved today he is not expected back in the lineup.

Scott At Second Base

Darwin Scott will appear at second base with Daley taking Merrill's outpost.

Salveson said he would alter slightly the Santa Ana batting rotation. Scott, who is hitting the ball on the nose even if not safely since his return to the regular lineup, is due to remain as leadoff man, but "Memphis" Hill will bat second and Daley, who is more of a driving batsman than Hill, will be in the three hole. The others will take their links as usual.

Wayne Nelson following Daley; Randolph Bell, who apparently took off his batting slump last Tuesday, following Nelson, and "Big Bill" Cole, Bill Hunter, "Beny" Wilcox and Cornelius coming up in order.

Every one of the 2000 seats in the permanent sections of the Bowl has been sold in advance so a capacity house is assured. There will be more than a thousand 25-cent tickets on sale at 6:30 o'clock, these being for the unserved "circus seats" along the left and right field foul lines. They are quite sure to be taken by the influx of fans from other cities in Orange county which did not get a crack at the better seats.

EL TORO

EL TORO, Sept. 5.—Mrs. George Osterman was hostess to the Woman's club Wednesday afternoon at her home. Flowers were attractively used throughout the home.

A short business session was held with Mrs. George Fox presiding. At the refreshment hour Mrs. Osterman served lead watermelon to her guests, who included Mrs. Alf Trapp, of Olive; Mrs. Ross Anthony, of Villa Park; Mrs. Harry Froehlich, formerly of El Toro but more recently of Santa Ana, is now operating an indoor miniature golf course in Santa Ana.

GETS UNUSUAL APPLICATION FOR POSITION

LONDON, Sept. 5.—(INS)—Sent by an ambitious young Hebrew to the editor of a prominent newspaper in Jerusalem, the following letter is published in the London "Jewish World":

"Honored and respectable sir—I am with great inconvenience writing for you this letter to ask in apologetic form for a position of importance in your office. I am not a fool at all, and indeed, respectable sir, I am making a good position now, but I desire to leave for the following reasons.

"It has been a long time my desire to see Jerusalem, which is a very Holy City, where the tombs of my fathers is. I am thinking

if I have to your office I will see the Holy City and perfect myself in the dear language of English. I must clear, my darling sir, in great respectfulness, that I am speaking and writing and making on the machine all the three languages of the country and Persian also.

"If you was to taking me I will serve you because I am honest. I read your newspapers daily all day, and I may give you some good ideas for to better make it. Some mistaking which do now occur daily will never happen me in your respectable office.

"To have me at first you will pay halfwages, so I will see the Holy City and make know myself to people. My family is old and a fat one in Tiberias, and my mother will give for me the good reference. If you do not like even to see me, you will write to me and explain, because I shall not be angry with you, but I must hear, and then I shall not hope in vain for nothing what coming not ever.

"I am always, you darling sir, your humbled and honorable servant."

SECTION TWO

Auditor Apportions $548,938 In County Tax Money

FINAL PORTION GIVEN CITIES AND DISTRICTS

The final apportionment of taxes collected during 1929-30 was made yesterday through the office of County Auditor W. C. Jerome, it was announced today by Les Eekles, chief deputy auditor.

Previous apportionments have accounted for slightly more than 90 per cent of the taxes collected during the year and apportionment yesterday amounted to $548,938.79. Of this amount $443,398.99 was transmitted to County Treasurer J. C. Joplin. Of this balance, $72,980.47 went in checks direct to cities and districts whose accounting is not handled through the county, or was applied against overdrafts on accounts where allowances made previously have exceeded the 90 per cent allowable.

Apportionments previously made amount to $6,373,191.85. This sum, with the amount apportioned yesterday and with the $138,265.14 in delinquencies and the $20,928.51 in cancellations, makes the total of $7,081,324.29, which was the total tax assessed.

Of the amount certified to various county and district funds yesterday, $244,147 went to school accounts and $54,007.50 to road funds. Approximately $40,000 went to replenish the interest and sinking funds of a long list of school districts in the county.

Other major apportionments were as follows: County general fund, $35,484.44; salary, $12,717.22; hospital, $10,944.80; interest and sinking, $85,042.27; advertising, $19,347.61; park, $147.35; unbudgeted reserve, $11,339.92; drainage districts, $452,736; protection districts, $312,576; road improvement districts, $764,150; acquisition and improvement districts, $400,779; and county improvement districts, $247,227.

This apportionment cleans up the accounting in connection with the taxes collected during the fiscal year just closed.

NOTABLES WILL SPEAK AT HOLY NAME SESSIONS

Plans were completed today for the commemoration of the 656th anniversary of the Holy Name society—the oldest laymen's organization in the Catholic church—to be held at the high school here, September 14.

Among the distinguished speakers who will attend are the Rt. Rev. John J. Cantwell, D.D., bishop of the diocese of Los Angeles and San Diego; the Very Rev. M. John Steven McGroarty will make the address of the day.

All Catholic parishes in Southern California will be represented, according to the diocesan secretary, Leo I. Farry. Among the leading churchmen invited are Rt. Rev. Msgr. John Cavley, P., vicar general of the diocese; the Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. McCarthy, Pasadena; the Very Rev. Msgr. J. J. Clifford, the Very Rev. Msgr. F. J. Conaty and the Very Rev. Msgr. G. Donohue, of Los Angeles; the Very Rev. B. J. Dolan, chancellor of the diocese; the Very Rev. Dean J. Hegarty, V.F., San Diego, and the Very Rev. Dean P. Dunne, San Bernardino.

The Santa Ana committee, under chairmanship of G. F. Ravenkamp, is rounding out the final details preparing to receive some 5000 delegates and visitors. Co-operating with him are Geo. F. Nash, grand knight of Santa Ana, council of the Knights of Columbus, and Fred Gillan, Paul J. Haller, L. M. Banks, Jules Markel, William H. Maag, Arthur J. Lirette, Joseph Haupt, Chas. I. Reagan and Robert F. Naylor. Some 50 ushers will be on hand under the direction of Edward Kolbe.

Francis Klatz, oldest active Holy Name member in the county, and a resident of Santa Ana, will be honored guest of the meeting. Special trains will bring the delegates from outside cities. The Catholic order of Foresters, at a recent divisional meeting, undertook to call on all members to attend this Holy Name rally in a body. Other fraternal societies also are joining in commemorating this occasion.

WILL REQUEST CITY TO STAGE BIRTHDAY FETE

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Special to The Register)

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 5.—(UP)—The city of Santa Ana will be invited to stage a birthday celebration for the city of Long Beach, which is scheduled to be held in 1931 as part of a statewide program to make "1931 a California Fiesta Year."

Such was the agreement here this week at a meeting of the Los Angeles and San Francisco governing boards of the California Newspaper Publishers' association, which endorsed the proposal to be carried out by the California State Chamber of Commerce and other statewide organizations.

Because 1932 will see the Olympic games at Los Angeles, many thousands of eastern tourists are expected to postpone their 1931 trip to California unless some attraction of tremendous pulling power is adopted, the C. N. P. A. members agreed.

Already there are more than 180 established celebrations in California. If each city in the state agrees to put on some sort of festival, whether it be a Strawberry fair, watermelon week, or Days of '49 festival, it will be possible to offer a celebration a day in California next year.

"With 400 newspapers of the state behind this movement," said John B. Long, general manager of the association, "we feel that it will do much to stimulate tourist business in what would ordinarily be an 'off year.'"

"An additional feature of the plan would permit newspapers to carry out in their respective territories a statewide letter-writing campaign for which prizes will be offered.

"The letters will be from residents of California to relatives or friends in the east, telling them why they should visit California in 1931, its fiesta year. By inaugurating these letter-writing contests in all population centers of the state, it is estimated that nearly a million direct invitations to eastern residents to visit California in 1931 will result, and that the normal tourist travel will be heavily augmented through this method of calling attention to the state's celebrations."

Broadway Market To Celebrate Its Eighth Birthday

The Broadway Meat Market, located in the Grand Central market, will celebrate its eighth anniversary tomorrow.

Messrs. Nelson and Klamm, proprietors of the Broadway Meat market, were being congratulated by their friends today upon the steady growth of business since the market was launched eight years ago.

The two proprietors declare it always has been their aim to adhere to the golden rule, and believe that strict adherence to this rule has been the backbone of their success.

SWING PRAISE FOR CIANFONI HEARD IN ERIE

Praise given D. C. Cianfoni, director of the Santa Ana Municipal band, in a recent address here by Congressman Phil D. Swing, was appreciated in Cianfoni's former residence, Erie, Pa. This was evident here today when a copy of the Erie Daily Times was received in which part of Swing's talk was quoted.

"I know of no city in California that can boast of finer musical organizations than this city possesses," Swing stated. "These organizations are an asset of which any community has a right to be proud."

"I was already well aware of Cianfoni's reputation as a musical director in Erie, Pa., prior to his coming to Santa Ana, Congressman Shrove, of Pennsylvania, having praised his work highly to me while I was in Washington."

Swing was present at the band concert in Birch park on August 14 when the organization directed by Cianfoni played the "Boulder Dam March," written by the director in honor of the congressman whose efforts to bring about passage of the Boulder Dam bill met with success. A report of this concert and address in the Register was reprinted in part in the Erie Times.

Legion Auxiliary Has Successful Dinner In Legion Hall

Sixty members attended the pot-luck dinner of the American Legion auxiliary last night at Legion hall. During the dinner the Glee club sang two very lovely numbers. This was the first meeting since the state convention at Sacramento.

Mrs. Dean Collier, business manager of the Glee club, gave a report on the work and Mrs. Martin Mathews, chairman of delegates gave a complete and interesting report on the convention. According to her account, Santa Ana unit, after having held second place in state membership for several years, has dropped to third place. Stockton, having gained 198 new members, thus outdistancing the local group. This should be an incentive for "every member to get a member" according to Mrs. Mathews. One new member, Mrs. Jennie Clem, was initiated last night.

Mrs. Charles Nussbaumer, chairman of the committee on socials, and chiefly responsible for so many charming bridge affairs during the past year, announced another party, the last in her regime, scheduled for September 24. She promises something novel and unique in appointments and prizes and urges everyone to obtain tickets at once and make table reservations early. The money obtained from this party will go to swell the welfare fund.

Mrs. Fannie Reeves urged all members to remember the jolly drive, September 12 and 13. Mrs. Reeves will be assisted in receiving and packing the fruit by Mesdames Arthur Eklund, C. G. Thatcher, William Penn and Charles Nussbaumer. The first jolly drive for veterans' hospital took place 9 years ago, at which time approximately 160 jars of jolly jam and fruit were obtained. Last year, Mrs. Reeves and her assistants packed and delivered 2000 jars of luscious jams and jellies, so dear to the hearts of the bed-ridden veterans.

Auxiliary members were happy to welcome back Miss Julia McGill, who with her sister, Dr. Peryl McGill, recently returned from a three years' sojourn in Paris, France. Miss Julia McGill is a past treasurer and both are charter members of the unit.

DEANE-SCOTT NUPTIAL RITES ARE EARLY AUTUMN FUNCTION

Attracting more than passing interest because of the prominence in educational and social circles of the two young people, the marriage last night of Miss Marian Deane, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Olin James Deane of Rochester, New York, and Ferris H. Scott, son of J. H. Scott of this city, was one of the most beautiful of the summer and autumn season. Various factors contributed to this charm, including in addition to the popularity of the young people, the setting, the delightful informality which prevailed, and the fact that the rites were conducted by the father of the bridegroom, a retired minister of the Baptist church.

The bride, who for the past four years has been connected with the science department of Julia Lathrop junior high school, and whose home has been at 112 Church street, has no relatives in the Southland, the two sisters who are the remaining members of her family, both residing in New York. So it seemed especially delightful that the home of Mr. and Mrs. Scott at 2094 Greenleaf street, should be made the scene of the wedding.

Pretty Color Scheme
Guests were greeted by Mrs. Scott and Miss Thelma Gerard, and shown to the spacious drawing-room, where the ceremony was conducted at 8 o'clock. Immediately in front of the rich velvet draperies of the front windows, an arrangement of asters, ranging from pure white through rose and orchid tints into deep violet hues, made an effective background for the ceremony.

Just at 8 o'clock, Mrs. Mervin Bryte, a co-worker with both bride and groom at Julia Lathrop school, took her place at the piano as accompanist for Miss Edith Cornell, also of the Lathrop staff, whose lovely voice was heard in De Koven's "O Promise Me."

Since Mrs. Bryte was a member of the wedding party, she resigned her place at the piano to Halstead McCormack, whose rendering of Lohengrin's Wedding March signalled the nuptial hour.

The Rev. Mr. Scott took his place at the altar, followed by his son, Ferris Scott, accompanied by his best man, Lyle Mitchell, principal of Frances Willard junior high school. Entering from the library was a quartet of young matrons, Mrs. Robert Wade in green chiffon; Mrs. Clarence Turnbow in delicately flowered white chiffon; Mrs. Bryte in rose chiffon, and Mrs. Warren Fletcher in pale pink net. The four wore wide tulle ribbons which formed an aisle for the progress of the bride through the little group of warmly interested guests.

Mrs. Lyle Mitchell was matron of honor, and wore a charming gown of blue flowered chiffon with a corsage of snowy sweet peas. She is a striking brunette, and was a perfect foil for the white and gold loveliness of the bride.

Miss Deane entered the room on the arm of Warren Fletcher by whom she was given in marriage. Her appearance was in accord with all traditions of a bride's loveliness, for she had chosen an unusually graceful and becoming gown of pearl-white chiffon georgette, whose long, full skirt and deep bertha collar were edged with narrow ruffles of self-material. A corsage of delicate mauve and pure white orchids lent a touch of color, and she wore as her sole ornament, a slender strand of pearls and crystals.

The marriage service was especially impressive as the father pronounced the words which united his son and the charming eastern girl. Friends gathered close to offer their good wishes, and following the friendly period, Mrs. Scott, with the assistance of the young matrons who had taken part in the ceremony, served the wedding cake and ices with chilled orange juice.

Honeymoon Plans
Mr. and Mrs. Scott left soon after the reception, for Catalina where they will spend the interval before the opening of the city schools, at the St. Catherine hotel. Mrs. Scott chose white for traveling also, an unusually smart little wool jersey ensemble whose long coat was adorned with the brilliant embroidery design appearing on the frock.

Upon their return they will take possession of a delightful home at 324 Kilson Drive, where Mr. Scott

Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated In Happy Fashion

Memories of their formal wedding just five years ago in St. John's Lutheran church, Orange, were recalled in delightful manner Wednesday night by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Walker of 2311 Riverside Drive, when they shared their anniversary with half a hundred guests.

Mrs. Walker, who was formerly Miss Louise Elliott, was apparently the same radiantly lovely young bride that she was just five years before, as she and her husband greeted their guests in Balboa Inn, in Orange county's popular little resort city on the sea. She had chosen the bridal white of her wedding day, except that the formal satin costume had given place to a gracefully bouffant little frock of shimmering net. The only touch of color was in a corsage of deep pink rosebuds, and the pure white gown was most becoming to her brilliant coloring and dark eyes and hair.

After the guests had all gathered at Balboa Inn, the hosts led the way to El Portal, where arrangements had been perfected for serving the delicious anniversary dinner. Bright-hued flowers gleamed in the subdued candle-light, and the pretty gowns worn by the feminine guests, completed a charming scene in colors.

Riley Huber presided as toast master, and many were the friendly little talks of congratulatory given, with both Mr. and Mrs. Walker responding to the good wishes. Everett Hoagland's trio played throughout the leisurely dinner hour, and the climax of the pleasure was reached when Mr. Huber, on behalf of the assembled friends, presented the hosts with a handsome covered serving dish in silver.

Late in the evening, the scene was transferred to the Rendezvous ballroom, where Mr. and Mrs. Walker had made reservations for their guests on the balcony. Entering into the romantic spirit of the evening, the orchestra of this popular ball room, dedicated countless appropriate dance selections to the hosts, contributing greatly to the success of the event.

Those present to share the happy anniversary with Mr. and Mrs. Walker, were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schroeder, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Schroeder, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Beatz, Mr. and Mrs. Duke Arndt and Miss Helen Byrd, Hollywood; Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Schneider, Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Hamann, Mr. and Mrs. Lemmie Vincent and Mickey Walker, Balboa; Mr. and Mrs. Joe C. Elliott, Newport; Dr. and Mrs. Charles V. Doty, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Bemis, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Collier, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur May, Mr. and Mrs. Riley Huber, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Huber, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hoagland, Dr. and Mrs. Will A. Flood, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Van Meter, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Walker and Mr. and Mrs. George Baker, Santa Ana.

Pleasant Hospitality Of Suburban Home Is Enjoyed

Several congenial friends were entertained Thursday at a very delightful 1 o'clock luncheon given by Mrs. Fred Windler at her hospitable home on Bryon and Redhill avenues. Autumn asters in beautiful pastel colors, brightened the rooms.

A delicious three course luncheon with chicken patties as the main course, was served with the assistance of Miss Minnie Windler and Mrs. Mossback. At the conclusion of the luncheon, the tables were arranged for bridge, the afternoon's diversion. Appropriate prizes were awarded to Mrs. J. O. Cozad scoring high, Mrs. Al Barnett second high, and Mrs. J. O. Metz, consoled.

Those enjoying the gracious hospitality of Mrs. Windler were Mrs. Henry Windler, Mrs. Minnie Windler, Mrs. Mossback, Mrs. Frances Coleman, Mrs. J. O. Metz, Mrs. J. P. Cozad, Mrs. Cassius Cluster, Mrs. J. P. Cozad, Mrs. Bears, Mrs. Lyle Forney, Mrs. B. B. McCulla, Helen Ferguson, Mrs. Mary Ellsworth, Mrs. Al Barnett, and Mrs. H. M. Robertson.

Margherita Marsden Was Incentive For Farewell Party

In compliment to Margherita Marsden who left Wednesday for Marysville where she will join the ranks of the junior college faculty, a group of friends gathered at Santa Ana Conservatory of Music recently to bid her farewell, with D. C. Clanton acting as host.

Informality was the keynote of the evening, and especially enjoyable were violin solos, "Songs My Mother Taught Me," and "Irish Suite" played by Miss Georgia Belle Walton. As a token of their appreciation of Mrs. Marsden and her accomplishments, guests presented her with a lovely scarf. A delectable refreshment course was served at a late hour.

Those sharing the pleasant evening, other than Mrs. Marsden and Professor Clanton, were Georgia Belle Walton, Blanche Owens, Edna Bichan, Ethel Coffman, Dorothy Hurd, Pearl Lazenby, Nell Matthews, Margaret Baker, Helen Young, Juanita Ahern, Maxine Britte, Freddie Barker, Ruth Armstrong and Margaret Rust.

Young Hostesses Plan Delightful Tea For Church Friends

Intrigued by the artistic effect of hand-painted Japanese scenes and quaint hand-lettering, of invitations issued to a tea by the young women of Grace Rowley chapter of the First Presbyterian church, those so favored, assembled yesterday afternoon in the home of Mrs. F. E. Coulter, 826 South Ross street, where they shared the delightful plans of their young hostesses, and heard with interest, the Rev. Kikuchi, the cultured and capable minister of the little Japanese church at Westminster.

Mrs. Coulter, who is advisor to this group of charming girls, seems to feel it a genuine pleasure to place her home, with its friendly and distinctive atmosphere, at their convenience when they wish to entertain. Its spacious rooms provided a cool retreat from yesterday's blazing sun, and were fragrant with flowers.

Arriving guests were welcomed by a "Little Miss Cherry-Blossom," in the person of Alice Clare McFarland, little daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. O. Scott McFarland of the Presbyterian church. Alice Clare was a pretty little Japanese kinona, with correct obi, or sash, and a great cluster of chrysanthemums over each rosy ear.

Miss Eva Dean Caskey, capable young president of the hostess group, welcomed the guests and conducted the very brief business session, closing with the introduction of the Rev. Mr. Kikuchi as speaker of the afternoon.

A graphic description of his boyhood days in Nippon, and his introduction to the Christian faith, held Mr. Kikuchi's audience enthralled. He told of his parents, one an adherent of Buddhism, and their horrid war when he became interested in Christianity. His first knowledge of the Scriptures, provided a strange little tale in itself, for as a boy of about 12, he came across a copy of the New Testament, in Japanese, and read the opening chapters of Matthew. Its stressing of genealogy made a strong appeal to this son of a race which venerates ancestors, and was a leading factor in his continued studies.

It was interesting to note, in this connection, that his parents early withdrew their opposition to his embracing a new faith. His education in a government school of Japan and in American universities, his experiences in the ministry, and especially in the little church at Westminster, proved equally interesting. The Westminster church was first founded as a mission, but has been organized as a self-supporting congregation for several months. Mr. Kikuchi is receiving the support and assistance of various Japanese families in that district, and the church is rapidly growing in membership and strength.

Following his talk, the guests were invited to the dining-room where all exclaimed at the beauty of the tea table appointments. The "Land of the Chrysanthemum" was suggested by the bright-colored parasol which rained its exquisite blossoms down over the striking little hollow square formed by the table's floral appointments. A priceless cloth of Italian laces and embroideries, which Miss Lula Minter had secured for Mrs. Coulter while in Italy, and the massive silver service from which tea was poured, contributed to the beautiful effect.

Miss Corinne Nelson, past president of Grace Rowley chapter, poured, and Miss Eugenia Gilbert sliced the delicious sandwiches which were served with delectable little cakes, petits fours and preserved ginger. The Misses Elsie Etchison, Margaret Hickey, Agnes McKinstry, Ruth Gardner and Geneva Tyler, were other aides, and many of them wore the charming and distinctive Japanese costume.

Guests sharing the memorable afternoon, included Mesdames W. W. Anderson, Thomas A. Blair, F. E. Coulter, Elizabeth Clark, A. V. Gray, J. R. Goodwin, J. E. Kellogg, H. W. Lewis, E. L. Morrison, O. Scott McFarland, E. C. McKinstry, J. H. Nicholson, H. K. Pollock, P. R. Reynolds, Walter C. Vieira, A. A. Young, W. D. Kring and Emmett Elliott, and the following members of the chapter, the Misses Eva Dean Caskey, Josephine Ball, Eugenia Gilbert, Ruth Gardner, Catherine Hickey, Margaret Hickey, Agnes McKinstry, Elsie Etchison, Corinne Nelson, Marie Osborne, Charlotte Pritchard, Elsie Venn, Dorothy Hankey, Cleo West, Jeanne Nicholson, Florine Pollock, Elizabeth Herrington, Eleanor Herrington, Geneva Tyler and Helen Allen.

Friends Are Greeted At Dinner Party

An attractive dinner party of recent date was that of the past week when Mr. and Mrs. James Lloyd were hosts in their attractive home at 120 West Twentieth street. Dahlias in deep autumnal shades of red, russet and orange formed a colorful setting for the affair, and contributed their festive note to the table decorations as well.

The afternoon was spent socially. Those present, other than the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd were Art Fenton and Mrs. Nellie Fenton of Maywood, Mrs. Rena Simmons of Maywood, Florence, Garland and Rena Maude, of Placentia, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Riley and children Juanita, and Charles Jr., of Santa Monica.

Honors Are Paid Two Guests at Pretty Luncheon

In attending a charmingly appointed luncheon of yesterday in the home of Mrs. R. H. Sandon, 903 Garfield street, honoring Mrs. John Wehrley, of Chicago, Ill. Mrs. Harold Brown little thought that she too was to be an honoree of the day, receiving a number of dainty layette gifts as a result of a miscellaneous shower.

Mrs. Sandon proved a very ingenious hostess, and not until the presentation of the attractively wrapped packages did Mrs. Brown realize that she shared honors with Mrs. Wehrley, who is the house guest of Mrs. A. L. Steward, of Eastwood avenue.

Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock with the small tables carrying out a lovely pastel color scheme evidenced in nut cups tinted in pink, orchid, green and yellow. Dahlias in a variety of deeper tones provided a brilliant setting for the affair.

In the bridge games of the afternoon Mrs. Urbin Engleman scored high, while Mrs. Nick Brock was second. Mrs. John Wehrley was consoled, and was doubly awarded, for she received a guest prize as well.

Guests sharing the pleasant afternoon with Mrs. Sandon, other than the honor guests, Mrs. Wehrley and Mrs. Brown, were Mes-

James Clyde Taylor, J. P. Murphy, Kirby Ferguson, Roy Ashen, Clyde Ashen, Tom Giesler, William Strain, Julius Meyers, Nick Brock, Barney Brock, U. J. Engleman, Edward Colby, Ray Helm and A. L. Steward.

The MIXING BOWL by ANN MEREDITH

Cooking
Gelatin is an important element in refrigerator cookery. It blends flavors and binds together unfriction ingredients, is economical because it makes small amounts of vegetables and fruits go a long way, and it furnishes us with an easily digested protein, a necessity for good health even on the hottest days.

Everyone has made the grated raw carrot salad moulded in gelatin—this one, I mean.

Grated raw carrot, diced pineapple and shredded green pepper set in a mould of orange gelatin made very acid with lemon juice.

Sometimes it turns out with the vegetables crisp, sometimes the carrot and pepper shreds resemble disheartened strings. The latter happens when the vegetables are added to the gelatin mixture before it has become cold.

Make the gelatin part and cool until it begins to jelly. Mix the vegetables through it, put into little moulds rinsed in cold water and let the jelling process finish. Serve on crisp hearts of lettuce with mayonnaise mixed with enough prepared mustard to make all flavors stand out distinctly.

TODAY'S RECIPES
Baked Eggplant
1 large egg plant
1 cup stale bread crumbs
1 tablespoon grated onion
1 egg, well beaten
Butter
Salt and pepper
Egg plant is not used to the extent it deserves. This, due to the unappetizing manner in which fried egg plant usually comes to the table. This vegetable is valuable because of its sodium element.

Organic sodium has the same effect in the body that commercial soda has on sour milk—it neutralizes the harmful acids our bodies distill from the protein foods we eat (meats, eggs, cheese, etc.)

For four people buy an extra large longwise in halves and cook in finely colored egg plant. Cut it boiling salted water for 15 minutes.

Cool a little, then with a spoon carefully scoop out the pulp.

Chop this pulp fine, mix with a cup of crumbs taken from the center of a stale loaf. Add butter enough to season to your test, salt and pepper also. Mix in the grated onion and egg, put back into the egg plant shells, cover with buttered crumbs and bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven.

The butter and breadcrumbs run the calories up to 1335 in this recipe. If you care to serve individual shells to each of four people, use two small egg plants instead of one large one. With it serve whatever meat you wish, no potato, and one other cooked (leafy) vegetable. Salad and dessert, whatever you please.

Just two more days in which we can offer The Diary of a Kitchen Peeps free of charge. Your part is to send in the well known stamped self-addressed envelope and be amused and instructed by this chronicling of the doings in a kitchen for a week.

Saturday's cooking lesson will take up the preparation of creamed finnan haddock with two vegetables. It is called Finnan Haddock Delmonico.

ANN MEREDITH.

To keep food warm after removing from the fire, a steam radiator has been devised with a compartment holding several dishes and platters for the purpose.

The deep-sea lantern fish is provided with a row of luminous discs along each of its sides. As he swims he looks something like a ship with a row of illuminated port holes.

"THE STORM" ENDS RUN HERE TODAY

One of the greatest romantic thrill pictures in the history of talking pictures closes its run at the Fox West Coast theater today.

It is "The Storm," produced by Universal from Langdon McCormick's sensational successful stage play of the same name.

Temporarily lovely Lupe Velez has the leading role. With her are featured Paul Cavanaugh and William Boyd, two of the most distinguished actors of the stage and screen.

The central situation of "The Storm" is sufficiently dramatic in itself. Two men, old friends, are penned up in a snow-bound cabin in the Canadian wilds, with the girl whom both love. While death by starvation, closes down upon all three, the love hunger in the hearts of the men hourly brings each other closer and closer to the other's throat.

Lupe Velez is ideally cast as the vivacious French-Canadian girl around whom the love interest centers. A feature of her performance is the singing of "Chansonnette of Pierrot and Pierrette."

Paul Cavanaugh and William Boyd give spirited performances as the rivals for her affections. Alphonzo Ethier and Ernie S. Adams also have important roles.

"MOUNTAIN JUSTICE" SEEN AT WALKER'S

Those who attend Walker's State theater today or tomorrow are due to see and hear a fast-moving Western all-talking thrill picture with Ken Maynard in "Mountain Justice."

The story centers around Maynard, who goes into the hills of Kentucky to avenge the murder of his father and becomes embroiled in the flare-up of an old feud. Single handed he fights his way through, gets his man and wins the girl of his heart.

Kathryn Crawford and Otis Harlan head a strong supporting cast.

The utmost in flavor and aroma comes to you in EVERY CAN OF

Hills Bros Coffee

Every doughnut turns out "perfect" when only a few are cooked at a time. Every berry of Hills Bros. Coffee is roasted evenly by roasting only a few pounds at a time.

HILLS BROS.' patented, continuous process—Controlled Roasting—has a definite advantage over any bulk-roasting method in that it prevents variation in flavor. What's more, the flavor which is developed in the famous blend has a richness that you won't find in any other coffee.

FRESH from the original vacuum pack. EASILY opened with the key. LOOK for the Arab on the can.

This rare coffee, so abundant in distinctive flavor and aroma, is sealed in vacuum tins as fast as it comes from the roasters. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is completely removed at the time of packing and kept out by this vacuum pack. So-called air-tight tins cannot keep coffee fresh.

Don't let another day go by without trying Hills Bros. Coffee. Ask for it by name and look for the Arab on the can. Sold by grocers everywhere.

8 Years Ago Today

The BROADWAY MARKET, as it is now known to you, was started. At that time it was a small market, doing a minimum of business under the most unsatisfactory and limited facilities. Today the BROADWAY MARKET stands as one of the most complete and ultra sanitary meat markets in Orange County. Our volume of retail business ranks high above any other market in the county. This we feel is the direct result of the business policy which we inaugurated on our opening day and our strict adherence to it during our eight years of business life.

To our countless customers who have been so loyal to us from the first, we give our sincere thanks, as well as to the many friends and customers we have made since that time. May we continue to merit your friendship and patronage.

THE WEEKLY PANTRY SHELF

WESTMINSTER

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Baxter, of Anaheim, former local people, attended the ball game here Tuesday evening. Their daughter, Jeanne, had the misfortune that day to break an arm when she fell from the porch of their home. Mr. and Mrs. Baxter also brought word of the serious illness of Jackie Baker, young son of Mrs. Elizabeth Baker, owner of the Anaheim sanitarium and formerly of Westminster. Jackie has been subject to mastoid trouble for several years and it is feared that another operation will be necessary. Mrs. J. L. Rivers, of Long Beach, spent Labor day as a guest in the Floyd Morris home. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Finley entertained as recent guests for the day, their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richards and other relatives, Mrs. Scheck and daughter, Isabelle Scheck of Los Angeles.

And She wore GINGHAM too.

UP IN the attic in an old trunk in your home there may be a daguerrotype like this one. And, though you see it seldom, it is associated in your mind with those traditional qualities of old and cherished things—wholesome honesty, steadfast purity and goodness through and through. Equally significant today is that same dear old blue gingham pattern which now distinguishes a good loaf of bread.

Weber's BREAD

"As You Like It"

You can buy Weber's Bread in the White or the Whole Wheat loaves, either sliced or unsliced. Weber's White Bread is wrapped in the attractive gingham blue, and Weber's Whole Wheat in appetizing gingham brown. The word "sliced" appears prominently on the wrappers of the sliced loaves.

THE ANYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

The Travel Man said: "Would you like to meet this little happy little?" "Of course," replied wee Clowny. "Can we meet the young girl, too? She seems to have a friendly smile. We might sit down and talk awhile. Of course, if you don't think it best, we'll leave that up to you."

This pleased the Travel Man and he said, "Howdy do?" The girl replied with a kindly grin and then said, "Tell me where you've been. I know that you are travelers and how I envy you."

Wee Scouty stepped out, brave and bold, and quite a thrilling story told about their wondrous visits. "It's been marvelous," said he. "Our friend, the Travel Man, has shown us many lands, to which we've flown. We never knew before how lucky anyone could be."

Then Clowny said, "Now tell us about the life you live. I have no doubt that you, too, have a heap of fun." The girl then knit her brows. "Well, maybe not and maybe so," said she. "Around our yard I go each day at work. You see I feed the chickens, pigs and cows. I also take care of this child. He's my young brother. My, he's wild. To keep the lot from crying, I give him a ride each day, up in the basket on my head. He walks, but likes to ride instead. They chatted for an hour more. Then the bunch were on their way. The next thing that they did was fly, just like a bird, out through the sky. For Calabria, in Italy, their monstrous plane was bound. Soon 'cross the ground the big plane ran and nearby stood a fine old man. He walked right up to greet them and then the Tinies gathered 'round.

FRENCH WRITER FINDS BORDER FORCES WEAK

By JOHN WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Sept. 4.—That the French are far behind the Italians in fortifying the common frontier through the Alps is the reasoned judgment of George Perre, star reporter of Le Matin, who has just completed a thorough inspection of that frontier.

Whereas the French "Blue Devils" occupy only a half dozen scattered points on the mountain range, and then only in peace time garrison, M. Perre observed that the Italians had strongly fortified a veritable chain along the entire frontier from Mentone to Mount Tende, concentrating at certain strategic points.

M. Perre further observed that military roads leading to the frontier from the Lombardy plains had been widened and strengthened to permit the passage of heavy artillery, and that tracks had been laid at four principal points for bringing up railroad artillery.

"The guns of Monte Gramondo can easily dispose of our flimsy fortifications at Mont Aegle," M. Perre writes, adding that "probably Monte Gramondo was not the only eminence so equipped, although I could see none of the rest with my glasses, and of course was not allowed to approach on foot."

The occasion for M. Perre's inspection was staging of the most elaborate French and Italian army maneuvers since the war in this region, prior to which, Le Matin says, there was a good deal of talk of war among the mountaineers of this region. M. Perre is of the opinion that the maneuvers quieted this unrest, along with adoption of a more conciliatory diplomatic tone between the two countries.

MISSOURI HENS WIN

Missouri is said to be the outstanding state in the production of poultry and eggs. In 1929 hens of that state produced 200,934,400 dozens of eggs valued at more than $53,000,000.

EVENING SALUTATION

"I am one of those who believe that our entire method of dealing with offenders is fundamentally wrong."
—GEORGE W. WICKERSHAM, chairman of President Hoover's law enforcement commission.

MRS. McCORMICK TO HAVE RIVAL

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick will have a formidable rival for a seat in the United States senate in the person of Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill. That she recognizes the fact is evidenced by an increased interest on Mrs. Mc-Cormick's part in law enforcement.

Mrs. O'Neill, who has announced her intention of filing as an independent for the office, beyond any doubt expressed the sentiment of thousands of Illinois voters when she said that the "dry" people of Illinois are not satisfied with the declaration of the state Republican convention, in which Mrs. McCormick concurred, that the party's attitude toward prohibition would be defined by a state referendum on the matter. The declaration is practically a "wet" proclamation, for sane influences are opposing "dry" expression at such referendums as Mrs. McCormick has declared influential with her, and therefore the "dry" vote is not expressed.

James Hamilton Lewis, former senator and Democratic nominee also subscribes to the anti-prohibition viewpoint.

These two candidates, Mr. Lewis and Mrs.
McCormick, it is easy to predict, will be among the most surprised people when the election votes are counted. Mrs. McCormick has underestimated the "dry" vote in Illinois, for the wets are the noisiest and most determined about expressing themselves. The natural associates of these two candidates would lead them to underestimate the strength of the "dry" vote. Political strategy favors Mrs. O'Neill.
The "dry" vote should not be split for any reason in this contest.

Furthermore, Mrs. O'Neill will draw to her standard those who are opposed to Mrs. Mc-Cormick's political methods—her bold defiance of the law on campaign expenses, and to the character of her support.

There is a rivalry between the two women dating back some years. Their opposition to each other came to a climax when Mrs. O'Neill resigned from the directorate of the Illinois Women's Republican club because of Mrs. Mc-Cormick's domination. The difference of these two women is over many political issues.
Mrs. O'Neill's candidacy is a challenge to Mrs.
McCormick's domination. It will be most interesting from the standpoint of the "wet" versus the "dry" sympathizers and also to women observers, especially those who want to see one type of woman dominate over the other type of woman.

Before women entered politics there was much discussion as to what women would accomplish. Many of those in favor of woman suffrage maintained that the women, because of their humanitarian interests, would be a champion of such measures as were from the standpoint of public morality and social welfare. It has been a disappointment to those who had hoped that many of the women who have come to the fore, who have gone highest in political achievements are as little interested in social welfare and public morality as many of the men politicians, and women have left little impress distinctive of women on political life. The Illinois contest, when Mrs. O'Neill files, promises a contest between two women which will be interesting from many angles.

A Miami judge has ruled that liquor may be manufactured within the home. Probably in the hope it would make some families keep still.

THE GREAT INTERNATIONAL MONEY
LENDER

The Swedish Match Company, which as we have noted in these columns a number of times as making loans to many nations, has just negotiated a loan of $2,500,000 to the little Republic of Guatemala. The loan bears an interest rate of 7 per cent, and was sold at 90.
In return for the loan, the Match Company is to have the exclusive right for thirty years to furnish the matches for Guatemala. France, Poland, Greece, Hungary, Bolivia and we know not how many more world states, have now received loans from this corporation.

The world has never known anything just like this. That governments with unlimited taxing powers and possessing considerable internal wealth should have to call upon a foreign corporation engaged in the business of making matches for loans is something so extraordinary that it is naturally the subject of international comment. It illustrates the tremendous possibilities for good or evil of great international business concerns. Dollar diplomacy has had a tremendous influence in international relations. The match business is by no means to have a secondary influence in that sphere.

A CURIOUS REPORT

W. L. Jones, meat man and Republican nominee for representative in the state legislature in Nebraska, is quite frank and detailed about his campaign expenses, to-wit:

39 pounds of rump steak, extension of credit on meat bills to 26 non-pay customers, 101 hot-dog sandwiches, 34 pounds luncheon cheese, 197 pounds catfish, 206 pairs of pigs' feet, 98 rings of bologna, 76 speeches—9 also bologna, 345 babies kissed, 197 old ladies joshed, 956 election promises, 342 pounds mince meat, 13 hams, 26 sides of bacon, 44 pounds of lard, 9 prohibition petitions signed, application to join ten ladies' societies, sang in three church choirs, attended ten dances.

This man was evidently a good mixer. Furthermore he made the most of what means he had to influence votes.

INTERVIEWS THE SIXTY-FOUR

A really interesting piece of work was done by the New York Times the other day. Some of the sixty-four men whom former Ambassador Gerard recently listed as those who really "rule the United States" were asked how they would go about overcoming the present trade depression. Several of the men were away on vacation, others were non-committal. "None of the notable sixty-four appears to have become unduly inflated as a result of his selection," says this article.

William M. Crocker, president of the First National Bank of San Francisco, said that he believed that general business conditions for this year will, as a whole, compare favorably with those of 1928. The year 1929 was abnormal and the inflated peak situation prevailing during that year should not be considered ground for comparison. He believes the agitation caused by a natural return to normal conservative and economic progress is misjudged for general depression.

Sidney Z. Mitchell, chairman of the board of the Electric Bond and Share Company, said:
"The remedy is more work and less talk."

An interesting viewpoint was expounded by one man who said that since succoring people in distress has become a profession, in order to support the profession it has been necessary to exaggerate every misfortune.

Mr. Roy W. Howard, chairman of the Scripps-Howard newspapers advised as a preventive for future period of unemployment making the development of old-age and unemployment insurance, under public control the rule in all states instead of the exception in a few. Mr. Howard also recommended the lowering of our tariff barriers.

POPULATION?

The last census is bringing out new facts of interest every day. One of these new discoveries is that there is one birth in this country every 13 seconds, and one death every 23 seconds and that while we receive one immigrant every 1 1/2 minutes, we send out one emigrant every 5 1/2 minutes. Since the 1910 census all the restrictive immigration legislation has been passed, and in the later years of this decade more people have been going out of the country than coming in.

This raises the question whether we can expect the population to grow as rapidly the coming decade as the past decade. Populations depend largely upon economic conditions in a land where popular education and ambition exist. The tendency of an ambitious couple is to restrict births, so that children may have ample opportunities to meet successfully the economic competition. Just what effect that will have in the next ten years only the 1940 census will reveal. While economic forces move under certain well-defined laws, there are so many unexpected factors constantly arising, that prediction is always problematic.

Our public domain is practically all taken up.
Our foreign trade may or may not increase with the coming years. Our natural resources are still large enough to support a much larger population than we now have. With these resources, and with the enterprise and ingenuity of our people, we have every reason to believe that even with all the changing factors, our population will continue to grow. Even France with a static population, has not ceased to have both a prosperous and a contented people.
France sends out fewer emigrants than any of the larger nations of the world.

Auditing Despotism

San Diego Union
"Though Italy has far fewer industries than France or England, yet she has had more failures than those two countries combined. Failures have risen from a monthly average of 321 in 1922 to an average of 1076 in 1929. In March, 1930, there were 1362."

The above constitutes one of the 16 bits of evidence submitted by ex-Premier Francesco Nitti of Italy in discussing the precarious state of Italian finances under Fascism. Admitting his own personal bias against Fascism, this distinguished Italian suggests that his country now provides a perfect field for testing the truth of the republican axiom that "suppression of liberty means suppression of wealth."

This is much more than an academic question to Americans. Investors of this country are heavily interested in Italy. Francesco Nitti cannot be far wrong in his statement that "the $600,000,000 which Italy has borrowed in the past seven years was loaned to her almost entirely by Americans."

The world has known for some time that all news from Italy is censored, that a free press and free discussion are impossible under the Mussolini regime. Yet it leaves it to exiled Italians to draw the perfectly obvious inference from this condition that efficient, honest government is impossible where governmental officials are immune from any criticism by the public.

In his New Republic article the ex-premier criticizes Fascism as a working economic organism rather than as a political system. He lays his evidence upon the table and asks an unprejudiced examination of a situation that involves thousands of Americans. In our own interest we should give his charges the serious consideration that his standing merits.

Handy Handles For the Cops to Hold Them By

San Francisco Chronicle
We have become somewhat adjusted to collegiate fashions. The coonskin coat has been bought and more less paid for. The wide cut cords, embellished with modernistic designs in paint, crayon or indelible pencil and frequently further decorated with gobs of axle grease are familiar even if not intensely popular outside of collegiate circles.

But now from England comes the alarming news that undergraduates are taking up the wearing of brilliant scarves wrapped around the neck and knotted carelessly. No doubt the fashion is picturesque and the addition to the landscape is offered as a compensation for carelessness in other respects. But while it may be colorful, it is going to be hard on the eyes. A group of collegiate youths will rival the sunset and outshine the traffic lights.
And their sisters are going to be mighty mad when they look for a favorite scarf only to find that Buddy is sporting it on the campus.

When it reaches that stage something not only ought to be, but will be done about this.

And penguins swarm in legions
But my ambition is not stirred
To emulate Commander Byrd;
I should not care
At all to fare
Around the Arctic regions.

I like to learn, when I'm at home
About the daring men who roam
Where lions growl,
Hyenas howl
And apes are fierce and active;
But though there may be quite a thrill
In seeking fierce wild beasts to kill
By land or sea,
Such things to me
Are highly unattractive.

I like to read of heroes who Go forth great noble deeds to do,
Who day and night
Will gamely fight,
Though foes may jeer and flout them,
But these bold men, I'm free to state
I should not care to imitate
I'd rather stay
At home all day
And read and think about them.

NO WONDER

Scotland sent no immigrants to America last year. Whiskey here's a dollar a drink.

A GREEDY GANG

Evidently seats on the bench are getting into the hands of the speculators.

NO HOPE

Things will be even worse when somebody discovers that there's room for a miniature golf course on the top of a motor bus.

The "Tom Thumb" Series
ConcludedBy WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

No nation can stabilize prosperity. It must either lose ground or gain ground.

No nation gains ground except when it is developing new industries at the right rate.

New industries create prosperity because they create buyers.
They put new money into consumers' pockets before they put new products into consumers' markets. Most of the money which is invested in a new radio plant, for example, is paid out as wages and is spent before the plant produces any radios. The wages help to take away stocks of all kinds which are already in the markets.

That is why we cannot prosper today except by planning to be more prosperous tomorrow. It is the building of new industries which enables us to market the products of old industries.

That explains why the growth of the automobile industry brought about the amazing growth of American business as a whole. But a stabilized automobile industry cannot help us to go ahead. It can do no more than help us to stay where we are.

If the United States is to prosper in the next 15 years, as it has prospered in the past 15 years, something new must take the place of the automobile industry. It may be one large industry, or it may be a number of small industries.

No single industry of sufficient magnitude is in sight. That is why we have had so much to say about the Tom Thumb golf course. Such an enterprise means little in capital outlay, but it means much as an example. In the darkest days of a business depression, it has created new demands for labor and materials, and in the process has put new money into circulation.

Doubtless there are a thousand unborn enterprises of equal merit. They are waiting for a thousand promoters of equal vision. And the whole country is waiting for the "good times" which a thousand such men could create, almost over night.

This morning we was eating breakfast and ma sed, Its Nora's day off today, goodness how I doted it.

I welcome it with open arms, not to say mouth, because it means we're going to have some real food, pop sed.

Meaning on account of ma being a swell cooker, and I sed, G, I'm glad too, I wish Nora had a lot of more days off.

Then I'm glad wishes are fancies instead of facts, thanks just a same for the compliments, ma sed, and I sed, Well gosh, ma, if I could cook as good as you I'd always be in the kitchen making different things and tasting them. Will you make us one of your private yellow rice puddings full of raisins? I sed.

Give me liver and onions and I don't care about the dinner, pop
sed. Although now that the subject is brought to my attention, I admit I wouldn't spon a nice fat lemon merrang pie such as any mother can make. But first and foremost a merry pile of calves liver rich with onions and vitamins, he sed.

A coconut pie would be almost as good if you haven't got time for a lemon merrang, I sed. And you know you haven't made a choickit cake for a dooce of a while, I sed.

Stew tomatoes go very sociably with liver and onions, pop sed. Nobody can fix up stew tomatoes like you. You have a touch with stew tomatoes, he sed, and ma sed, Well Willyum to tell the truth I had just about decided that it would be very nice for us all to go out and try that new restaurant that just opened on the avenue, its called Hugo's Home Cooked Resterant or something of that sort, and I've herd you can get the most marvellous corse dinner there for 60 cents, reely cheaper than I could get it at home, and all that fuss and bother avoided, what do you think, Willyum?

I think in exclamation marks and sware words, pop sed.

Meaning he didn't like the idee, only it sounded like a pritty good one to me on account of resterants being fun.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

FEWER AND BU SIER PRISONERS

By 1934, when the Federal Convict Labor Bill goes into effect, America should be ready with a well thought program that will fill the gap left by the going of the indefensible prison contract system.

America is far from ready to meet the situation that will confront her, in this matter, in 1934.

The National Committee on Prisons and Prison Labor, as long ago at 1928, suggested an approach to the problem along the following lines:

(1) We should eliminate from our prisons all who should not be there, thus reducing the number for whom productive employment must be provided, and four possible ways of doing this readily suggest themselves, viz:

We should deport to their native countries undesirable aliens who reach our prisons.

We should transfer to the obviously appropriate institutions all insane, aged and infirm, and the incurably and infectiously diseased prisoners.

We should transfer to psychopathic institutions and farm colonies the mental cases and the lower grade feeble-minded prisoners.

We should parole and enable to work off fines all persons who are in prison for debt or what is virtually imprisonment for debt.

(2) We should increase the employment of prisoners in public work on farms, and five of the more obvious ways to go about this are, viz:

We should correlate the new doctrine of regulating unemployment

by the controlled direction of public works with the employment of prisoners.

We should extend the use of prisoners on road construction.

We should use prisoners in the urgently needed work of reforestation and reclamation.

We should use prisoners in dairying to produce the dairy products consumed by prison populations.

(3) We should greatly develop our prison industries, with political leadership calling to its side in the planning of their development and direction able counsel from manufacturers and labor representatives, but, in the development of such prison industries, there are mistakes that must be avoided, viz:

We should not develop prison industries that do not exist in the state outside our prisons and which will train prisoners for a kind of work they cannot find in the state after they are released.

We should not develop prison industries which, for efficiency, must use a prison labor force so large that it will be undesirable to release later so many men for work in such industries in the state.

We should not develop prison industries in fields that are on the verge of drastic change and which, again, will train men in a field that will not be alive when they are released.

We should not develop prison industries, the plants of which must lie idle part of the year, because of over production or the seasonal demand for their products.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI
SLA NG

Clear, accurate speech is a fine accomplishment. If a child can express himself in good English, tell a story and make his point, use words fittingly, he has a great gift. One that will open wide many a pleasant door.

Young people like to experiment with language. They like too to break the rules the adults set up for them. Perhaps those two reasons underlie the use of a great deal of slang. It is fun.
It makes speech spicy. It is dramatic and it makes the audience laugh. You cannot blame children for liking all that. And we are a bit too stiff about our speech for the fun loving children. We have to be.

But we all use slang. If we did not the children would never hear it and so would never use it. Language is based upon imitation.
When a child shocks you by his colorful phrases you ought to look for the one who set the pattern and discipline him first. The child is saying only what he has heard on the street, in the theater, in his home.

We have a child's speech under our control as we have no other of his activities. It is from his mother he gets the first lesson.
It is her voice he hears first. It is her words, her inflections, her manner of speech that he follows first—and usually last. The other members of the family make their contribution, but the base of his speech comes from his mother—the nurse and close friend of his infancy.

Let the child talk. If he uses too much color speak to him privately about it. If he uses words that are not to be used, tell him so privately. It is most unwise to make a child conscious of his speech when talking to his elders.
He will soon cease to talk honestly if he is checked and corrected every time he opens his mouth.
Teach him that his tongue is his passport. It will admit him to whatever grade of society it fits.
He cannot associate with gentlemen, or with gentlewomen, if his speech is that of an uncouth person. Gentle speech, fitting words, considerate expression, will carry a child into the best society—not the richest, that is not important —but the best.

THE FIRST CONGRESS

On September 5, 1774, the first Continental Congress met in Carpenters' Hall, Philadelphia.

Fifty-five delegates, representing all of the colonies but Georgia attended the first assembly. They represented a population of 2,200,- 000.

Resolutions from various sections of the country, stating their wrongs, were presented to the congressmen. Also, a petition to the British king (the declaration of rights and grievances), was ordered. That document stated that by the riddance of the system of laws and regulations of which the colonists complained, harmony would be restored.

We ask but for peace, liberty and safety, the petition declared. "We wish not a diminution of the prerogative, nor do we solicit the grant of any new right in our favor. Your royal authority over us and our connection with Great Britain we shall always carefully and zealously endeavor to support and maintain."

The delegates agreed that another congress should be held with-
